INJUNCTION IN SHOP STRIKE IS MADE PERMANENT

Judge Wilkerson Hands Down Decision on Temporary Order Obtained by Attorney General Daugherty Last October.

By Telegram to The Freeman. Chicago, July 12.—The temporary injunction obtained October 5 last by Attorney General Daugherty restraining striking railway shopmen from interfering with interstate commerce was made permanent in a decision handed down today by Federal Judge Wilkerson, sitting in Chicago.

In the language of the temporary injunction obtained almost a year ago, shopcraft employees are restrained from the following:

"1. In any manner interfering with, hindering or obstructing said railroad companies (fifty plaintiffs) in the operation of their respective railroad and systems of transportation or the performance of their public duties and obligations in the transportation of passengers and property in interstate commerce and the carriage of mails, and from in any manner interfering with, hindering or obstructing the officers, agents, servants or employees of said railway companies, or any of them and from preventing or attempting to prevent any person or persons from freely entering into or continuing in the employment of said railway companies."

"2. In any manner conspiring, combining, confederating, agreeing and arranging with each other or with any other person or persons, or organizations or associations to injure or interfere with or hinder said railway companies."

"3. Littering or being unnecessarily in the vicinity of the points and places of ingress or egress of the employees of said railway companies—or aiding, abetting, directing or encouraging any person or persons, or organization or association—to any of the acts heretofore described."

"4. Inducement or attempting to induce with intent to further said conspiracy by the use of threats, violence or abusive language, opprobrious epithets, physical violence or threats thereof to any person or persons to abandon the employment of said railway companies."

"5. Engaging, directing or procuring others to engage in the practice commonly known as 'picketing'."

"6. Congregating or maintaining pickets."

"7. Doing or causing—bodily harm to any of the employees of said railway companies."

"8. Directing or procuring others to direct or procure others to do any of the acts hereinbefore described."

LAY'S CAR HITS MISS BARNARD'S

He Was Attempting To Pass Another Car and She Was Turning Into Driveway at Chris DeWitt Farm—None Hurt.

Wednesday evening Miss Ella Barnard, who resides at the Chris DeWitt farm on the Hurley road, was returning home from Hurley her car and a car driven by Chris Lay, of the Saugerties road, came into collision as she was turning into the driveway of her home. Miss Barnard was driving a Cleveland car and was proceeding slowly in order to turn into the drive when Mr. Lay, who was driving a new short Nash, attempted to pass another car coming in the same direction and as he swung to pass the car saw the Cleveland, which was turning to the left toward the drive. His speed was too great to stop and he attempted to pass the Cleveland, which was traveling the same direction as he, on the left. Miss Barnard claims that she signalled that she was about to turn into the drive. The Nash sideswiped the Cleveland, doing considerable damage and then ran off the road and through the fence and turned over in the adjoining field.

With the assistance of a large crowd which gathered the Nash was righted and proceeded under its own power to the Ulster Garage for repairs. No one was injured.

Success Follows Use Of Insulin, New Diabetes Remedy at Benedictine

Ninety Per Cent of Cases Treated Show Remarkable Improvement—May Be Boon To Mankind.

Inquiries at the Benedictine Hospital elicited the fact that insulin is being used there daily for the treatment of diabetes. The doctors report that of ten cases nine showed remarkable improvement. It is estimated that there are almost one million suffering from diabetes in the United States and it is gratifying to know that the staff of the Benedictine Hospital are trying to do their part to combat this dread disease in Kingston and vicinity.

Insulin is the discovery of Dr. P. G. Banting of the University of Toronto, Canada, who began his research work which resulted in the discovery of the now famous remedy only three years ago. Two years ago, in July, after experimentation in the laboratory of the university, insulin was perfected, but administration of the remedy to patients did not take place until February, 1922, when ten cases of severe diabetes were selected and the test proved a brilliant success. Since then the administration of insulin to diabetic patients has been undertaken in hospitals in various parts of the country, and recently Dr. Banting explained his discovery in detail before a large gathering of physicians from all sections of the United States, the conference being attended by members of the Benedictine Hospital staff. The production of insulin is so complicated that quantity production is limited and the laboratories which can produce it require the most utmost care in its use so that not any of it shall be wasted. For the purpose of aiding in its production, gifts of considerable magnitude have been made within the past month by John D. Rockefeller to certain hospital laboratories where insulin is being produced in the United States and Canada.

The remedy for diabetes is so new that its value is not yet fully appreciated by the medical profession or the public. Medical books issued up to the time that insulin demonstrated its power to cure diabetes, and probably some of the books issued since that time, have agreed that while remedies in some cases are more or less potent, diabetes was incurable; severe cases varying in duration, sometimes lasting less than six months, but usually going on for years before producing death.

Sugar, which is the main fuel of the body, supplying nearly two-thirds of the energy required, is supplied either directly or through the conversion of starchy foods into sugar. The sugars, or carbohydrates, not only furnish energy in themselves, but they burn up the fats which form part of our daily food. When a person suffers from diabetes, the sugars in the body refuse to burn up the fats and not only are turned into the blood themselves but allow the fats to smoulder and smoke instead of burning. The smoke, which is the acid, poisons the body.

Insulin, which is the key to the door of the cell, allows the sugars to enter the cell and burn up the fats, thus stopping the smoke and saving the body.

Will Submit To Them Her Reply To German Note—Resolved To Exact Payment From Germans But France's Course Endangers Peace of World, Declares Baldwin

By Telegram to The Freeman. London, July 12.—Great Britain will draft a reply to the latest German note on reparations, and submit it to the allied powers for their approval, Premier Stanley Baldwin announced the House of Commons this afternoon.

"We hope the Allies will join with us," the premier said. "If they do not England will be forced to act independently."

"France's course is endangering the peace of the world," Baldwin said.

"It cannot be made too clear," he added, "in the interests alike of the powers or any who hope to profit from exploiting Germany, that the differences between them rest on the sole ground of divergences of means of reaching the ends upon which all are agreed."

England has never wavered, Baldwin said, in her determination that Germany should pay.

"We are as determined as any of our Allies that Germany should make reparations for damages of the great war to her fullest capacity."

"But," he said, "we are convinced that measures which will result in the ruin of Germany will be fatal to England, her Allies and the whole of Europe."

"Germany appears to be moving rapidly toward economic chaos," Baldwin said.

"This chaos may be succeeded by social and industrial ruin and there is a genuine apprehension that she may shortly face a serious food shortage."

"Hope of the recovery of her credit and the consequent ability to pay her debts is receding into the dim distance."

"There is no justification for the French course," Premier Baldwin declared.

"It would be difficult to justify it even in times of war."

Opinion throughout the world, the premier said, has become charged with alarm.

"Recovering of the world's peace has been at stake in the conversations between England and her Allies," he said.

"They have not yet led to any positive results."

Security for the world, Baldwin said, rests upon three points.

"Peace cannot be secured until these three questions are settled," he declared.

"One is payment of the reparations. Another is settlement of the inter-allied debts. The third is the security of a pacified Europe."

Since the occupation of the Ruhr, England has stood aside, Baldwin said, because of her sincere loyalty toward the alliance which has been and continues to be the main security for the peace of Europe.

"So far as united action with our allies is concerned, we will continue to pursue it," Baldwin said.

"We will confidently expect sympathetic consideration of our allies to our proposal which has no other aim than the pacification of Europe and the recovery of an exhausted world."

TROOPERS TRANSFERRED FROM BRICKYARD SECTION.

State Troopers Roche and Ross, who have been stationed at East Kingston under command of Sergeant James Cunningham, who has charge of the state troopers in Ulster county, have been transferred to Hancock, Delaware county.

Troopers Roche and Ross were known as the Black Horse Patrol, who on their rounds patrolled for some time the East Kingston section, where they did good work and made many friends by reason of their maintenance of order in the brickyard section.

NOVA SCOTIA MINERS DISOBEY LEWIS'S ORDER

By Telegram to The Freeman. Atlantic City, N. J., July 12.—Eleven thousand striking miners in the Nova Scotia coal fields today defied John L. Lewis, international union president, who last Tuesday ordered the strike called off. This information was contained in a telegram received by Lewis this afternoon.

Auto Hit Electric Pole.

Wednesday afternoon a young woman driving a Marmon touring car, the license number said to be 149-027, N. Y., struck an electric light pole at Port Ewen snapping it off at the base. The car was somewhat damaged but was able to proceed under its own power. It is said that the driver turned out to avoid running into one of Howard C. Winne's big auto trucks, and turned too sharply colliding with the pole.

LOVE'S HARD PATH

Combination That Was Too Much for Belinda.

How Was It Possible for Her Married Life to Be Happy After Such Warnings?

Of course one may not be superstitious, but circumstances alter cases, and sometimes the course of our lives, observes a New York Sun writer, Clarence met Belinda one day in March, which is rather early in the year for disturbances of the heart, but he fell hard and at the end of a week found himself still at her feet.

So one night in the darkness of the movies his hand sought hers and during a spirited burst of sound from the orchestra he asked her to marry him. She hesitated, as a shy young girl should, but something seemed to hold her tongue-tied as well. Suddenly light dawned, it was April 1. Well, he would not catch her that way, she thought, and said with sweet maidenly reserve that, of course, as she had not known him very long it would be better to discuss that a little later in their friendship. Clarence thought it might be wiser, and with apparent meekness acquiesced.

During the next ten days they saw each other frequently. Then one bright day Clarence appeared, his countenance radiating satisfaction, and presented her with a small package. On being opened it proved to be an engagement ring, a genuine diamond, which Clarence hastened to assure her of by scratching her initials on the window pane. Belinda was charmed indeed, but as her eyes half consciously sought the "Thoughts for Every Day" calendar hanging on the wall, she saw it was Friday the thirteenth. She was much troubled, but the ring was pretty, so she accepted it and the impulsive young man that accompanied it.

Then followed a four-weeks' engagement for the team of Clarence and Belinda. At the end of this time the young woman was still fond of the ring, but her affection for Clarence had received a decided chill.

One night as he was saying a fond farewell at the foot of her brownstone steps he asked her for the thousandth time if she still loved him, when suddenly a black object ran between his feet, and losing his balance, he fell backward upon the stairs, dragging Belinda with him.

Belinda tore the ring from her finger, thrust it at him and cried: "I can't marry you! You proposed to me on April Fool's day, you gave me the ring on Friday the thirteenth, you have spilled salt on the table three times this week, opened an umbrella before we were out of the house, a black cat ran across our path, and when you threw me down just now you broke the mirror in my vanity case. Good night!"

Madam, Your Age, Please.
A woman's age? The simplest thing in the world to find out. At least so Mr. Felix Weiss, immigration inspector, says, though we are doubtful whether his methods succeeded every time. In his interesting book "The Sieve" he explains his methods; it is certainly amusing.

If a lady, he writes, refused to give me her age, I told her I could guess it. Then with a woman's inborn curiosity she would make the mistake of asking me to do so; too late did she realize that she had walked into a trap.

I generally guessed about ten years older than she looked and might say, "Madam, you are about fifty-five years old."

"Oh, you horrid man!" would come the retort as a flash. "I am only forty!"

"Thank you, madam; that is all Uncle Sam wanted to know. Here is your landing ticket. Next!"—Youth's Companion.

Friendly Philosophy.
Nature punishes neglect and plays no favorites. The neglected field becomes an unsightly mass of tangled briars and rank weeds; the undrained swamp a stagnant cesspool—repulsive breeder place of varied ill and poisonous growths; the human brain an unclean generator of falsity and soul-blasting ideals unless directed into channels of realism and truth. Neglect is indeed costly.—J. E. F.

DO YOUR FEET HURT?

When shoes pinch or corns and bunions ache, get a package of Allen's Foot-Ease, the antiseptic, healing powder to be shaken into the shoes. It takes the sting out of corns, bunions and calluses, and soothes itchy feet. At night when your feet ache and burn from excessive dancing or walking, sprinkle some Allen's Foot-Ease in the foot-bath and you will solve your foot troubles.

Over 1,500,000 pounds of powder for the feet were used by our Army and Navy during the war. Sold everywhere. Trial Package and a Foot-Ease Walking Ball sent FREE. Address: ALLEN'S FOOT-EASE, Le Roy, N. Y.

TO BRING TSETSE FLY HERE

Remarkable Proposal Made by Wild Animal Collector Who Sincerely Is in Earnest.

A collector of wild animals, writing from Africa to one of our universities, proposes to bring to the United States a lot of living tsetse flies, apparently to introduce this interesting insect into this country. The matter has been called to the attention of the federal horticultural board, United States Department of Agriculture, which commented on it as follows:

"This is the biting fly which is believed to be the carrier of the African sleeping sickness, but this collector reassuringly states that there would be no danger in connection with the introduction inasmuch as he proposed to keep the flies—males and females—alive on the way on his own blood, and perhaps thus to propagate them and, therefore, could guarantee that they were noninfected."

"It might prove to be easily possible to introduce and establish this fly in the tropical and subtropical parts of the western hemisphere and the presence of any man or animal affected with the sleeping sickness would complete the vicious circle."

"This collector requested that no publicity be given to his effort, as it might prevent some other material from being secured by others, and gave assurance that the proposed importation involved no more danger than the handling of an unloaded shotgun. Evidently the unloaded shotgun has overlooked an opportunity for usefulness."

Vezin's Slight Mistake.

Charles Vezin said recently: "Four years ago I chucked the double life of commerce and art for the single blessedness of painting. While exploring rural New England for a sketching ground I injured my shoulder and called in the professional services of a country practitioner. He was a gentleman of culture and high professional attainments. I left that section, asking the good doctor to send me his bill. He did not do so until a year and a half later, when I received, when in a different state, his bill for professional services—$150. I looked at it aghast and thought: 'Well, that is going some. A hundred and fifty dollars for three visits to the office of a country practitioner.' And I said to myself: 'You confounded medical proffiter, I'd like to see you get it!' and was about to write him what our English friends call a 'snaky' letter. But on thinking it over I decided to pretend to think that he meant to write fifteen instead of a hundred and fifty, and mailed a check for fifteen dollars with his bill. Three days later I opened a letter from him returning my check. And I murmured: 'So you are going to insist on payment. Well, you can sue me.' On reading his letter I found these words: 'Dear Mr. Vezin—I herewith return your check. You made a mistake. My bill is one dollar and fifty cents.'—San Francisco Argonaut.

When Anarchist Welcomed King.

Ivan Gorgonovitch, the man whose anarchistic writings and utterances had stirred up millions of persons against royalty and the divine right theory and who was credited with having sown the first seeds of the Russian revolution, met the king face to face and smiled a cheery though surprised welcome. Gradually the smile broadened into a grin and finally he laughed outright.

Ivan Gorgonovitch's companions looked on with mixed emotions showing on their fierce countenances. Two of them frowned their disapproval; one sneered incredulously and a fourth expressed amusement in a blasphemous utterance. But Ivan Gorgonovitch, the terrible anarchist, paid no heed to them. His whole attention was given to the king. There was adoration in his eyes.

Ivan Gorgonovitch had just filed a royal flush and there were eighty-five American dollars in the pot.—L. B. Birdsall in Judge.

Husbands and Husbandry.

The office boy, whose wages went either for pie or for picturesque attire for his evening parade along Illinois street, was always facing financial problems. The Saturday pay envelope had come and gone, and late Saturday, because certain creditors had to be satisfied, he was attempting to borrow a dime with which to buy his afternoon allowance of pie. The office force, however, was unresponsive, allied against him, in fact, having learned from experience the difficulty attending the collection of repayments.

"Why don't you stop borrowing money?" one of the men in the office inquired. "Don't you know that repeated borrowing dulls the edge of husbandry?"

"That don't mean nothin' to me," he replied. "I'm not married."—Indianapolis News.

Wished to Help Out.

Aunt Grace is teacher in a high school during the winter, and playground specialist in summer time, both jobs being necessary so that she can provide for her widowed sister and three little children. She has the admiration of her nieces on account of her accomplishments.

The other evening the older one said: "I'm going to be a teacher and playground woman both like Aunt Grace when I grow up."

"The little one looked troubled. 'Why I was going to be that myself,' she returned. 'But now I reckon I'll have to be the sister with the children, so you can spend your money.'"

STRIKE THREAT FINDS GARY COOL

Steel Corporation Head Reiterates Position on Wages and 12-Hour Day, Acknowledges Right to Organize.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
New York, July 12.—Rumblings of a new nation-wide steel strike, penetrating the offices of the United States Steel Corporation today, failed to visibly alarm Elbert H. Gary, board chairman, and spokesman for the steel industry.

Judge Gary had before him a dispatch containing the demands leaders in the new unionization movement within the steel industry say they will make on the corporation:

1. A higher wage.
2. Improved working conditions.
3. The universal eight hour day.
4. Stricter immigration laws.

"I cannot anticipate anything the union leaders may do," Judge Gary said, as he read the statement of N. C. McFadden of Cleveland, a moving spirit in the unionization, announcing the new campaign was under way.

Gary pointed out that at the last stockholders' meeting he went on record in answer to every demand now being voiced by McFadden, who says he has the pledge of Samuel Compers and the American Federation of Labor for "backing to the limit."

"Men in the steel industry, as a rule, certainly as to a large majority, would always be perfectly satisfied except for the uncalculated and unjustified interference of outsiders who know nothing about the business and who would just as soon see it come to grief as see it succeed," said Judge Gary at that time.

His views of the danger of the threatened strike were summed up when he said "sometimes they (outsiders) have created trouble, but it is not lasting, and when the men have an opportunity to pass upon the questions that are raised they are generally pretty prompt to decide in favor of the judgment."

"I am on record as to my position on all matters relating to unionization, wages, working conditions, the eight hour day and immigration," Judge Gary said.

There is no reason why any group should not organize to gain for itself a better economic position," Judge Gary holds. However, he insists unions should be brought within the provisions of the same laws which govern business, that labor's books and records be open to public inspection.

"It is hardly possible to have serious industrial disturbances if all the facts are known," he said.

The points union chiefs say will form the basis of their campaign are answered by Gary as follows:

1. Wages. The steel corporation has never been willing to take advantage of labor being plentiful and has always kept wages up to what is believed under all the circumstances to be generously fair."

2. Working conditions. "The steel industry has treated its men better than the workers of any other large industrial concern are treated, better than such workers have ever before been treated in this country during any period."

3. The eight hour day. "When sufficient labor is at hand to fill the vacancies in the steel industry the eight hour day will be established."

4. Immigration. "If this country is to maintain the economic position to which it is entitled in the onward march of nations we must have sufficient numbers of competent workmen adequately to supply our industries."

ROSENDALE. July 12.—There is to be an entertainment in the Reformed Church on the evening of July 13 at 8 o'clock, for the benefit of the church. The C. E. Society members of the First Reformed Church of Kingston are to be the entertainers, and will present shadow and moving pictures. After the entertainment ice cream and cake will be on sale by the members of the church.

On Sunday next, July 15, the Rev. G. B. Mead of Kingston expects to be the preacher at the 10:45 a. m. service. The Sunday school session will be an hour earlier, with topic, "Simon Peter" Matt. 16:13-23.

Mt. Marion and High Woods.—There will be services next Sunday at the regular hour, with Rev. Joseph B. Richards as the preacher of the day.

Shokan and Mt. Tremper.—The Rev. George W. Gulick, pastor of the Ulster Park Reformed Church, will occupy these pulpits next Sunday Service at Mt. Tremper at 11:30 eastern time; Shokan at 11: eastern time.

International Date Line. The international date line, at or near the one-hundred eightieth meridian, is the imaginary line at which date change, being made later by one day west and earlier by one day by those crossing from west to east. The line is somewhat irregular in order to separate the islands of the Pacific in such way that those lying to the west of it carry the same date as the United States, while those to the west of it carry the same date as Japan and Australia. It is employed in order to avoid confusion of dates which would necessarily result from gain of one day on the one side and loss of a day on the other in traveling around the globe. The dates in use upon most of the Pacific islands are those which resulted from the dates carried by the European and American colonists, those dates differing as the colonists came from the east or west.

Charming Dresses of Cotton Fabrics

Staple Materials Vile With Novelty Effects in Summer Outfits.

There is one type of dress in the designing of which America excels. It is the purely summer frock of cotton material. The Frenchwomen's ideas regarding what goes into the making of a midsummer dress differ from those of the American in many ways. She apparently has not our use for the cotton dress, observes a fashion writer in the New York Tribune.

Among the marvelous cottons of foreign origin and the printed silks designers have not forgotten to place stress on the cottons that have for many years been considered more or less staple. They realize that there is bound to be a revulsion of feeling and when women have tired of these gay fabrics they will turn to the simple type of dress that they always have liked.

Among the cottons featured are the almost overworked cotton crepes, voiles, piques, batistes and linens embroidered either in matching or contrasting colors. A white material may carry an embroidery pattern in several colors.

Swiss muslin with its shower of dots always is a favorite with the American.

Charming Blue and White Swiss, Plaited and Youthful in Design.

can woman, although made little or completely ignored by Paris dress-makers. There are dots of varying size, but small ones find the most favor.

Organdies are exquisite in their shadings. The shades used for them are taken from the silk color card.

Linens and voiles are used as freely as ever the former in both the handkerchief and heavy weaves. Both linens and voiles are used for modes featuring all the trimmings.

Various types of needlework, such as were used in our great grandmothers' times, again are seen in profusion on sheer frocks for summer.

Sectional Bookcases Big Library Adjunct

No other room in the home offers greater opportunities for the quiet expression of individuality than the library, says the Milwaukee Sentinel.

It has been said that "a house without books is like a room without windows." Therefore the bookcase, the real substance of the library, depends for selection partly upon taste, partly circumstances, and partly upon the number of books to be housed. Sectional bookcases enable one to buy from time to time and add more books.

The chairs in the library, regardless of style, must have one property in common—comfort. Probably no other chair is as appropriate for the library as the Morris chair, with its adjustable back and foot rest. Then there are other things needed, such as tables, smoking stands and the like.

The effect of the whole must be perfectly harmonious. There must be no jarring note, no discord to disturb the visual or mental repose. So bear in mind in furnishing the library, to create an "atmosphere" that is thoroughly expressive of repose and comfort.

Ornamented Gloves. Gloves are taking on distinctness as the last word in ornamentation. Long gloves for wear with the sleeveless gown are tucked at two-inch intervals from wrist to top. Other gloves are embroidered and still others finished off with the most bewitching of little frills.

White Popular. White outfits all else in popularity for summer blouses. These are usually in crepe de chine and continue to show the low line about the hips. Beaded blouses are predicted for fall.

Caution to "Beat It." I, a young fellow of twenty, stopped in to buy a bath sponge. I stepped up to a pretty young saleslady, and said, "I'd like a sponge bath please." Then I saw her face, realized what I'd said, and beat it.—Exchange.

Popping the Question in Switzerland.

Suppose that a young woman told her parents that she was engaged to a certain young man, and that when he called at the house the parents offered him an old cheese. What would he do? In the Zermatt valley, Switzerland, that means consent. When they approve of the match, the parents offer the suitor a taste of their old cheese. Courtship is by symbol in Val Zermatt, Switzerland, words not being necessary. The lover places a log of wood before the door of a maiden. If she takes it in, she accepts him. He is rejected if she leaves the log outside. In certain parishes of Valais, wedding garments for brides and grooms are kept in carved chests in the parish house. They are loaned to couples too poor to buy them.

The "Gordon Riots"

A graphic picture of the scenes in London during what was known as the "Gordon Riots" in 1780, is given by Dickens in his story of "Barnaby Rudge." An act, passed for relieving Roman Catholics from certain liabilities, brought about the riots. Associations to secure the repeal of the act were formed in Scotland and in the metropolis. A London leader was found in Lord George Gordon who undertook to present a petition to the house of commons. The mob, however, soon got out of hand and in the riots which ensued Newgate prison was attacked and burned, besides other prisons, and many houses of foreign ambassadors, judges and political personages who had incurred the antipathy of the mob.

Changing Children's Glasses.

After glasses have been prescribed, particularly in children, the eyes should be examined at intervals of six months or a year in order to be sure that the condition for which the glasses have been prescribed is actually relieved. Very many children need their glasses changed in six months because the eyes cannot bear the full correction for the abnormality at the first examination. A second pair of glasses is often worn longer than the first. But during school life every child should have his or her eyes examined at least every year.—William M. Carhart, M. D., in The Health Builder.

Not So Easy to Take. An ounce of honest criticism is worth more than a pound of flattery.

Mrs. Priscilla Hague Rev. George L. Paine

Because he gave Mrs. Priscilla Hague, a bride of a few weeks, a kiss of "fatherly affection," the Rev. George L. Paine, prominent Boston clergyman, was punched in the jaw by her husband, Lieutenant Wesley McLaren Hague, U. S. Navy. Dr. Paine performed the wedding ceremony for the Hagues. He was badly cut in the encounter with the irate naval officer.

To Be Happy at Work.

MORE LEAGUE DICTATION

Two months have passed since the New York state legislature passed the bill repealing the Mullan-Gage law, and the Anti-Saloon League officials continue to froth over the refusal of the legislature to do its bidding as previous legislatures had done. The League is now telling people that the Republican party must do certain things and must not do certain things. Naturally, the questioning mind inquires where the Anti-Saloon League acquired its authority over the Republican party.

For many years the Anti-Saloon League directed the affairs of the Prohibition party, which was its political mouthpiece. Then prohibition laws were passed by Congress and various states. In New York state the Prohibition party, which had led a precarious existence for many years, failed to continue existence because it could not muster enough votes for its candidate for governor to retain a place on the state ticket.

Now, the Anti-Saloon League is announcing an overwhelming existence of prohibitionists, and says they are in the ranks of the Republican party. Where did this overwhelming number of prohibitionists come from? Certainly not from the Prohibition party, which could not muster enough votes to keep its place on the state ticket. Isn't it more likely they exist only in the super-heated imagination of the Anti-Saloon League officials, who have found an easy way of earning a comfortable living by the voluntary contributions of people who are easily influenced by noise instead of analyzing the League's statement.

Since when did the Anti-Saloon League annex the Republican party and tie it as a tail to the kite which advertises that the League officials want a steady revenue out of which to pay their salaries?

TREAT THEM RIGHT

It is gratifying at this time of year, when traffic laws are so often flouted and courtesy on the highways is so rare, to note that the Kingston traffic cop, at least, functions pretty well. Every now and then we read that some driver who banged into another car in some other locality or did other damage and then drove away, was caught because his license number was telephoned to the Kingston police department and the traffic officer told to look out for it.

The officer has a busy time of it, at best, and with perhaps three or four numbers running into the millions to look out for, the mud-encrusted license plates, often half illuminated at night and the frequent traffic congestion, keen eyes and a good memory are necessary.

Police men in general may and do wink at many infractions of the law regarding automobile lights and traffic officers may seem unduly rude and raucous in calling attention of motorists to trifling transgressions, but on the whole, the traffic cop is the motorist's friend and standing for hours on a hot pavement in a broiling sun doesn't make the cop feel like telling his best joke to some "dumb-bell" or "Smart Alec" who has just disregarded his signals and caused confusion.

Give the officer a plain signal before you're almost on top of him and then obey his directions and you'll make it easier for yourself, the officer and others who use the streets. He won't be offended if you blow your horn to let him know you're coming.

"MEAT WEEK"

There being only 52 weeks in the year and practically all of them pre-empted by crowding reformers and promoters, the National Live-Stock and Meat Board was fortunate to find a still tagless seven-day period beginning on June 25, which they could appropriate and proclaim "Meat for Health Week." With great industry they distributed meat-recipe books, put out colored posters endorsed by the Department of Agriculture, and otherwise published the glad tidings that "meat is a wholesome, healthful food, high in food value and important in the economic structure of our country." They also announced that their "meat week" beginning June 25 was but a "first step in a campaign to bring about a closer understanding between the producer and the consumer."

In this connection it is pertinent to remark that the consumer is already pretty well convinced of the merits of meat, and that he is troubled only with doubts as to his continuing ability to pay excessive prices. In consequence of such doubts he is likely to heed the advice of physicians and eat comparatively little meat during the remainder of the summer. The promoters of "meat week" must regard it as unfortunate that the circumstances referred to above compelled them to choose a hot-weather period for their campaign.

Answers to Previous Questions.

1. Are elephants' tusks solid all the way through? Not in young specimens. Old ones have the tusks solid to the heart or core. Elephants' tusks correspond, roughly speaking, with the long incisors of a beaver, pushing out from their base in the jaw from a pulpy "capsule" as it is called, which consist of ivory-making material. In young elephants only the forward part of the tusk has become solid the section nearest the head being still pulpy at core. With age this softer centre grows hard, and in old elephants has wholly solidified.

2. Do crocodiles have ears? Not external ones, in the common sense of an elevated visible ear such as mammals have. But there is a bone, ear-covering just back of each eye, a sort of trap door that is held ajar when the top of the head is out of water, but shut down tightly over the ear-opening when the crocodile submerges.

3. Are there any birds' eggs as small as hummingbird's eggs?

Eggs of the golden-crowned kinglet measure 56 by 44 inches which is a fraction larger than those of hummingbirds, which are 50 by 36. The latter lays but 2 eggs but the kinglet's nest may show 3 to 10 eggs.

John Burke, three times governor of North Dakota and for years treasurer of the United States, during which service he handled $227,000,000 of Uncle Sam's money without loss of a penny, has offered to appear before a New York grand jury and testify, under a waiver of immunity in the investigation of the $2,000,000 failure of Haides & Burke, Wall street brokers, in which he was a partner. He has the alleged bucketing of orders to his partner, declaring he knew little of the business, which he asserts he was drawn merely for the use of his name. HOW

CHARACTER STUDENTS MAY LEARN FROM THE PROFILE.

Can you read profiles? What do long noses indicate? or bulging brows? or receding chins?

There are four types of profile—the vertical, the concave, the convex and the "S" shaped. Each one has a definite meaning. A convex profile proclaims a rapid thinker. It never fails. It also invariably denotes an observant, self-centered person.

A concave face denotes a slow, labored, plodding type of mind. This face is philosophical, calm, collected, but once it makes up its mind it is usually right. This man's fault lies in being too conservative. He thinks too late.

The plane type of profile is moderate. This form denotes a good judge of human conduct and a fair one of things. The vertical profile is apt to go far in any pursuit because it has the happy faculty of keeping in the middle of the road.

The "S" shaped profile is the best for all around usage. Most handsome men possess it. A sharp nose usually accompanies this face. Such a profile denotes quick, decisive, correct thoughts and actions. But look out for an "S" turned backward. The reversed "S" is the weakest face of all. It is concave above, where convexity and reflective thought are most needed and convex below, denoting rapid action. This is the type that acts before he thinks which is fatal to most pursuits of life.—New York World.

How Seasons and Guests Are Ordered to Govern Display of Art in Japanese Home

In Japan and China art collecting is done on a broader scale and the collector is equal in class. Also, Japan has art showing and using art, and also has art in looking and admiring. A Japanese house is decorated with one painting, and one vase with flowers and few other things, and that is all in one room. It may look bare, but if you are invited often you see different decorations according to the season, in assortment and harmony. In a western home everything is exposed at one time and you know what is in the home the first visit.

The Japanese way of showing art is admirable because the Japanese select objects according to the taste of the guest and also according to the season. The decoration consists of pictures, flowers, a harmonious selection of dishes and bowls, and choice foods and drinks of tea or sake, art with nature and nature with art; you talk about the garden, and talk about art all the time art together with nature. That is the eastern way; they have plenty of time for admiring art. Art is very important—next to life. Life without art is no life. So there is not one who has no taste. They have good or bad to start with; to cultivate your natural gift of art is your duty, and it will make your life happier.—Matsuhiko Miya in the North American Review.

How Sepia Is Prepared.

Sepia, a pigment used as a water color, is prepared from the secretion of a peculiar organ, called the ink bag, found in the cuttlefish. This secretion is black at first, and insoluble in water, but extremely diffusible through it. It is therefore agitated in water to wash it, and then allowed slowly to subside, after which the water is poured off and the sediment, when dry enough, is formed into cakes or sticks. In this state it is called India ink. If, however, it be dissolved in a solution of caustic potash it becomes brown, and is then boiled and filtered, after which the alkali is neutralized with an acid, and the brown pigment is precipitated and dried. This constitutes the proper sepia.

It is generally prepared in Italy, great numbers of the species which yield it most abundantly being found in the Mediterranean. The black kind, called India ink, is prepared in China, Japan and India, and forms the common writing ink of those countries.—Detroit News.

Cling to Ancient Customs.

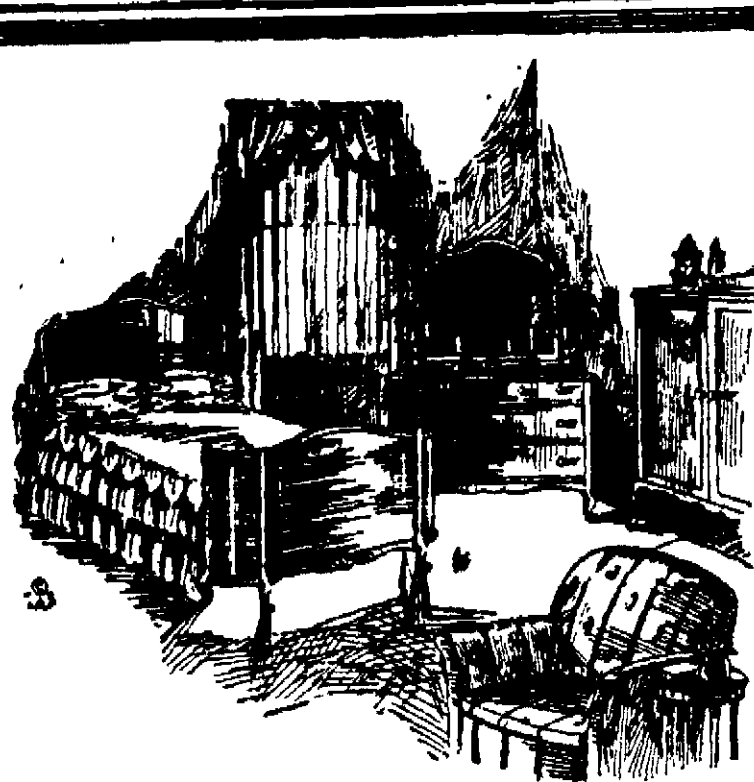

To the Karens, in Lower Burma, the great banian trees, the caves and waterfalls, deep pools in the rivers and even the skies, are filled with mysterious demons. Bamboo "ladders" are set up for the demon inhabitants of trees, and the paths about a hill village are strewn with rolls of cotton, trays of colored rice balls, live chicks, bits of eggshell and other tempting offerings to induce the demons to forget their evil designs on the villagers. When they gather to feast in honor of the "ogha," or family spirits, the young women of the hill tribes wear the effective seed-trimmed smock in which they work in the fields. But on the plains the Karen girls are adopting black velvet jackets in place of the seed-trimmed smock, the minor native airs are being forsaken for the music of the West, and houses are built on the solid ground, as are those of the neighboring Burmese. Only in the solitude of the hills, far away from external influences, do the ancient Karen customs still prevail.

World Ungrateful to Mozart.

Mozart's body was buried in a "common grave," in the plainest manner possible, with nobody present except the keepers of the cemetery. Weeks after, when the wife visited the spot, she found a new grave-digger, who could not tell where her beloved husband was buried, and to this day the author of 14 Italian operas, 17 symphonies and dozens of cantatas and serenades, about 800 compositions in all, sleeps in an unknown grave. Salzburg, Austria, waited a half-century before she erected a bronze statue to her world-renowned genius. In the square of St. Michael, and 70 years after his death Vienna built him a monument in the cemetery of St. Mark. History scarcely furnishes a more pathetic life. "He filled the world with music, yet died in want and sorrow," says a biographer. He died December 4, 1791.

Twilight.

Twilight is daylight which continues after sunset. Light is reflected from the upper air till the sun is about 18 degrees below the horizon, but the duration of twilight is manifestly much influenced by the state of the atmosphere. In low latitudes, both on account of the quickness with which the sun traverses the 18 degrees below the horizon and because of the transparency of the atmosphere, there is little twilight. On the other hand, in latitudes higher than 45 degrees twilight at certain times of the year lasts from sunset to sunrise.

What Do They Say?

WHEN the car drives away, and your guests have gone, what do they say? Is it, "What a beautiful home—I wish I had a bedroom like theirs—the furniture is in such good taste?"

Home furnishing can be so expressive—it can reflect good taste and well-bred social pride, or it can leave in the visitor's mind an impression of carelessness and unpreparedness.

Important as it is, the selection of the right furniture for your home is made easy by our strict adherence to quality and correct styles in the furniture which we offer, and by the expert advice of our experienced sales staff.

BERNARD TODAY; LABATE TOMORROW

Betty Kernard will pitch for the locals at Red Hook this afternoon. Kernard pitched for the Adams, Massachusetts, team last season and this year has been working for the Schenectady of C. team. If Kernard makes it at Red Hook today it may be for the rest of the season. Friday Joe Labate, formerly with the Schenectady team, will be the hurler for the local team. Labate keeps in condition in these days of the best hurlers in the country and it may be that he will be used by the local club also. The National Vandeville Artists, who play in this city Friday, come with an excellent reputation as players and a good game should be put on. The game tomorrow will be at 6:15.

W. J. FALLON IS SOUGHT AS BRIBER

Indicted for Paying C. W. Rendigs, Juror in Durrell-Gregory Trial, $25,000—Rendigs Also Missing.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
New York, July 12.—United States marshals today sought William J. Fallon, one of New York's leading criminal lawyers and Charles W. Rendigs, a cloak and suit manufacturer and a former juror in the federal court, in order to arrest them on indictments charging jury bribing.

The indictments followed the government investigations into the activities of bucketshops, said to have swindled innocent investors out of millions.

Indie ments were returned against Edward M. Fuller and W. Frank McGee, members of the firm of Fuller and Company, and now in jail on contempt charges; Charles H. Clarkson, "dummy" head of the Charles H. Clarkson and Company, brokerage firm, said to be owned by Fuller and McGee; John C. Feeley, publicity man for the brokers and James Minnaugh, member of the firm of Hedberg and Company, said to be an aid to Clarkson Company in its alleged swindles.

The indictment charges that Fallon, an attorney in the trial of Durrell-Gregory and Company, Inc., accused of using the mails to defraud, paid Rendigs $1,500 on the day he was empaneled as a juror, later paying him $1,000 more.

The jury returned a verdict of not guilty.

The grand jury was told, it was said, that bribes had been offered jurors in the McGee-Fuller trial, in which Rendigs also sat. Rendigs had denied this.

Fuller, McGee, Clarkson, Feeley and Minnaugh are indicted on charges of using the United States mails to defraud.

ORGANIZED

Sam, the colored driver of an ox team, saw a little lizard crawling up a tree. He flourished his long whip and very deftly snapped off the lizard's head. Further along the road, with skillful precision, he picked a horseshoe off the fence with the same weapon. His skill as a marksman was next exhibited on a chipmunk that showed his head above the ground.

A white companion finally said: "Sam, take a crack at that borer's nest." Sam grinned and replied: "No sah, no sah, boss; them fellows is awganized."

No Arrest.

He bumped into her car. "I had my hand out," declared the girl indignantly.

"Such a tiny hand," murmured the young man. "No wonder I didn't see it."

Then the traffic cop waved them all along.

A Compromise in Kissing.

"She said I could kiss her on the cheek."

"And did you?"

"Not exactly. I couldn't decide on which cheek, and so I kissed her in between both." — Copenhagen Klods Hans.

Reported From Boston.

Visitor to Boston—One place I want to see is your old granite burying ground.

Friend—Old granite burying ground? Visitor—It sounded like that, but perhaps it's the old granite burying ground. You must know about it.

DISAPPOINTED IN HER

She—You told me I would never want for anything if I married you.

He—I didn't think you would, but you're always wanting something.

Harmless Smoke.

The fellows who have coin to burn are not the kind that we admire. We see their smoke but always know they'll never set the world on fire.

Merely Hangs a Tale.

"He used to dream of painting a picture that would be hung in the Louvre."

"Never realized his dream, eh?"

"No, but he had his picture hung in the roques' gallery and he himself was hung in the jail yard."

Self Evident.

"As the father of eleven children what advice would you give a young man contemplating matrimony?"

"As the father of eleven children, young man, I don't think it's necessary for me to give you any advice."

Looking to Future Business.

Actress—What will your charges be to arrange a divorce for me?

Lawyer—Madam, if I have the assurance that you'll let me handle all your future divorces I shall make it very reasonable.

Identified.

He—Who is that fellow with the long hair?

She—He's a fellow from Yale.

He—Oh, I've often heard of those Yale larks—College of the Pacific Weekly.

An Oversight.

Prof.—Did I say anything about the crux of the position?

Bright Student—No, sir.

"Hum! I meant to work that phrase off somehow."—Columbia Jester.

AUTONOMY

Son—What are revenues, papa?

Father—Those are the taxes that Uncle Sam collects.

Son—What does Uncle Sam do with them, papa?

Father—He spends them to run the government, sonny.

Son—Yes, sonny?

Father—Let's start a government."—Denver Telegram.

Hollywood Engagement.

"Zaza and Rupert eye each other coldly as they pass by."

"Why, they were engaged to be married. In fact, I received an invitation to their marriage."

Feline Amenities.

"How kind of you to call! I'm so sorry to have kept you waiting."

"Oh, don't mention it—I've not been at all bored. I've been trying to imagine what I should do to make this room look tasteful if it were mine."—Boston Evening Transcript.

Betty's Conclusion.

Betty stood gazing at her grand-father.

"Well, dear, what is it?" he finally inquired. "What's in your mind?"

"I was thinking, grandpa," replied Betty. "that if the good die young what an old rascal you must be."

A True Love Test.

Mabel—I understand that Ethel's new beau is an ex-service man. Is he attached to her?

George—Is he? I should say so. She had him to dinner several times and served salmon and he never said a word.

Progress.

"How is Smith coming along with that country place?"

"Well, he has reached the point where he is almost ready to let the architect see the plans he himself has drawn."—Life.

ABSOLUTELY SO

Customer—Are you sure that this milk is pure? I know that these bottles are hard to keep clean.

Milkman—Why, madam, we use nothing but sterilized water.

Might Help Some.

For better times we long. Of course we do. But then I think folks should get better, too.

In Old Age.

"There's no fool like an old fool."

"I've tried being all the other varieties."

"Well?"

"Glad I have something to look forward to."

Almost Like New.

Caller—Isn't that picture one of the old masters?

Mrs. Newrick—I believe so, but my husband had it varnished and framed in a way that makes it look almost as good as new.

Narrow Escape.

"The biggest fish got away."

"That's what they all say. I bet if I hooked a big fish I would land him."

"So would I. But he didn't even show up where I was fishing."

Cause Instead of Cure.

"I used to go to the theater just as a tired business man would."

"Why did you give it up?"

"I found it was the plays that were making me tired."

A Suggestion.

Wife—We need a new set of dishes, dear. This one is nearly gone.

Hub—Why don't you wait until we get a new cook and start even?

Might as Well.

"Our neighbor has borrowed all our books."

"Send him over the bookcase."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Economic Exercise.

"Ever do any sprinting, old man?"

"Running into debt."

"Any boxing?"

"Sparting for time."

Discouraging.

"The fools aren't all dead yet."

"No, and the worst of it is most of them aren't even sick."

Plural of "Money."

The correct plural of the word "money" is "monies," following the rule that nouns ending in "y" preceded by a vowel add "ies" to form the plural. The word "monies" is an irregular plural that is sometimes used, particularly in the sense of "sums of money."

RENOVATION AT ORPHEUM THEATRE

New Paint, Stage and Dressing Rooms—Plans for Remodelling Drapped.

Manager Sherry, of the Orpheum Theater, stated this morning that his previous plans for remodeling the Orpheum would be dropped, as the period during the summer that the theater is closed is too brief to accomplish the work. Instead the entire house will be renovated. Work has been begun already and will be continued following the one-night performance of the N. V. A. Society Friday evening.

New lavatories on the ground floor are being installed and the stage and dressing rooms are being rebuilt. Both inside and outside will be painted. The management expects to open the Orpheum in August with first class attractions, bigger and better than staged in former seasons.

The Desire to Excel.

The desire of excellence is the necessary attribute of those who excel. We work little for a thing unless we wish for it. But we cannot of ourselves estimate the degree of our success in what we strive for; that task is left for others. With the desire for excellence comes, therefore, the desire for approbation. And this distinguishes intellectual excellence from moral excellence; for the latter has no necessity of human tribunal; it is more inclined to shrink from the public than to invite the public to be its judge.—Bulwer-Lytton.

Why Worry?

The fussy station master of a small village near Edinburgh found one night a fellow countryman standing, nonchalantly smoking, with his feet half over the edge of the "up" platform.

"Don't you know that the Edinburgh express is passing here directly at 60 miles an hour?" said the station master. "Come back, rooks back!"

The other slowly turned his head and taking the pipe out of his mouth, replied: "You're awfy feered for your rail!"—Exchange.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

BY MARY GRAHAM BONNER

LOWELL'S BIRDS

"Today," said Billie Brownie after he was back in Fairyland in the evening. "I saw such nice bird baths and bird dishes of drinking water fixed in a safe place away from cats—high upon a lattice where cats could not climb."

"And I found that a little boy named Lowell had put them there; for Lowell, it seems, is devoted to birds and is always trying to find out more about them."

"And he does this by watching them and listening to them sing and looking them up in a little bird book and in studying them. The more he studies them and watches them the more he grows to like birds and watching their happiness has made him feel more and more how wicked it is for anyone to ever steal eggs from a bird's nest and take away from the bird's happiness."

"No one suggested to Lowell that he should do all this for the birds. It was quite his own idea and it pleased Billie Brownie, I can tell you."

"Hurrah! Hurrah for Lowell!" cried every one and then the little

"In a Little Bird Book."

creatures of Fairyland sang this song after Billie Brownie had taught it to them:

Lowell has grown to love the birds, Lowell knows the birds in their own chatter. Lowell knows the birds that really matter.

He knows when they cry And exactly why. Even if they can't be seen. If they cry a cry of alarm Lowell rushes forth to save them from harm.

Perhaps it's to scare a cat away Who'd not care a bit if they should say, "Please don't hurt us, Mr. Cat. We'd rather not make your tummy fat!"

Oh, Lowell helps the birds and they sing for him. And perch upon an apple-tree limb And they sing and sing, and still they sing.

"Oh Lowell," they cry, "you're just the thing!" "You're just as thoughtful as can be. And we sing your praises up in this tree!"

"We're glad you like to know about us. We're glad about us that you care to fuss!"

Oh yes, Lowell is a friend of the birds! "Some time," said Billie Brownie, "I'm going to ask the Dreamland King to take this song to Lowell and tell him that these are some of the little thoughts the birds tell him when they sit upon the apple-tree limb."

"In fact," added Billie Brownie, "I think I will be off now and will ask the Dreamland King. If he won't go around and call upon Lowell this very evening."

"It would be a good idea," said the Brownies and Bessie Brownie hugged his brother Billie and said: "Oh Billie, that is ever so good an idea."

So Billie Brownie went to see the Dreamland King and he found him sitting upon Sleepy Cloud Mountain in his favorite easy chair.

"Hello, Billie Brownie," said the Dreamland King as he threw his soft fluffy white cape about his left shoulder and, reaching out his right hand, shook the hand of Billie Brownie.

"Hello, Your Majesty," said the Billie Brownie. The Dreamland King likes to have his friends say "Hello" to him.

There's nothing stiff about the Dreamland King. He is just as friendly as can be. "I have a request to make," said Billie Brownie.

"I'll grant it before you ask it," said the Dreamland King.

And Billie Brownie made a low and magnificent bow and almost fell over for Billie Brownie, as you know, is a round, fat, little brownie, but the Dreamland King caught him just in time.

"Gracious!" exclaimed the Dreamland King. "Do you know, Billie Brownie, that you almost fell off Sleepy Cloud Mountain?"

"Dear me," said Billie Brownie, rubbing his eyes. "I did feel myself going, you know. How dreadful it would have been. I would not want to be hurt. I have so much to do all the time. I suppose that is one of the reasons why no one wants to be hurt! There is always so much to do."

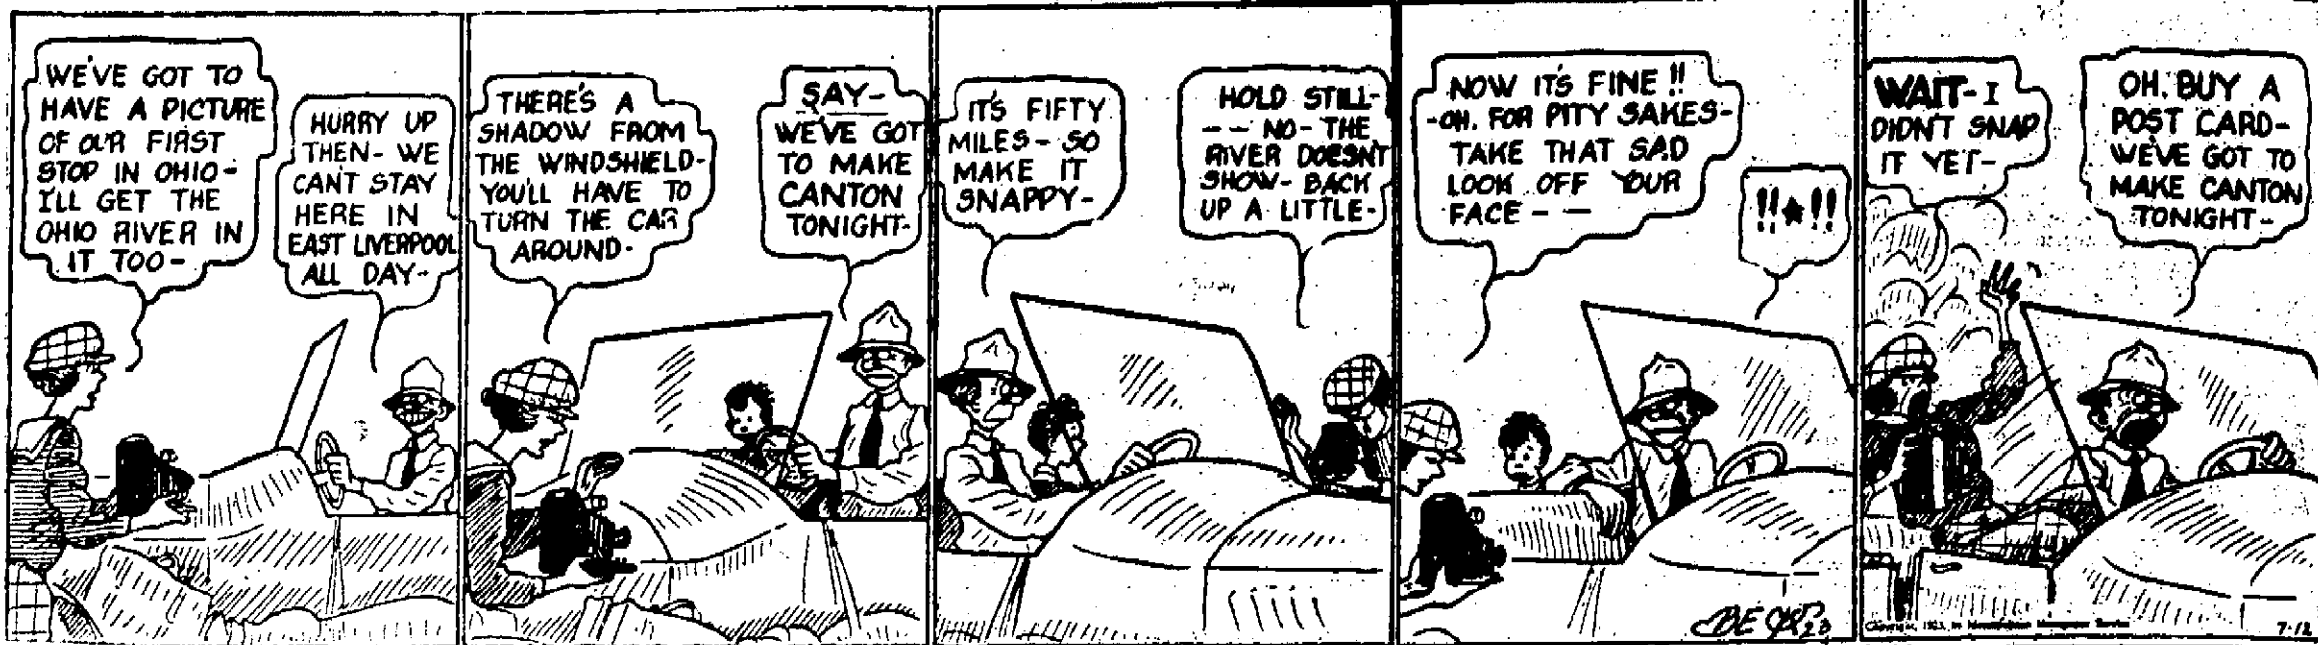

"But you wouldn't have been hurt," said the Dreamland King. "You would have landed in Slumberland after you had fallen and it is a soft and lovely place to land in."

"Oh," checked Billie Brownie. And then he asked the Dreamland King to call upon Lowell and to tell him some of the bird secrets, and the Dreamland King was off to do that at once, leaving Billie in Fairyland's Slumberland on his way.

Getting Wamp Pictures

Nature photographers know birds are easiest to approach and photograph at their nests, and so it is with wamps, says Nature Magazine. In addition they are not unlike birds in that they may be attracted by putting up proper houses for them.

BRAINS AS FANCY MEATS

We all know that brains are needed to cook, but there are few cooks who know how to cook and serve brains well. Packers realizing that variety is desired pack brains in cans or cases and ship them frozen or in cold storage to all parts of the country. When we get over the idea that we don't like them we will find they are as delicate and dainty as a dish of sweetbreads.

Prepare the brains by removing the skin that covers them, and the juice of half a lemon or a tablespoonful of vinegar, cover with cold water for two hours, changing the water twice in this time. Cover the brains with boiling water and simmer for fifteen minutes. Drain, cool and divide into five pieces; they are now ready to be broiled, fried, deviled or served in countless ways.

Fried Brains.—Prepare as above and when cold dip each piece into beaten egg, roll in flour and fry in fat until a golden brown. Serve with cold slaw or chili sauce.

Deviled Brains.—Cut thin slices of toast into outlet shapes and sprinkle with grated cheese. Cover with chopped brains previously prepared as above, sprinkle with salt, paprika and cheese. Season with mustard and cover with buttered crumbs and brown in the oven. Serve hot.

Beef Brains Neapolitan.—Prepare the brains as above and cut into slices. Roll in bread crumbs, then dip into egg and crumbs again. Place them in a saucepan with half a carrot, half an onion, both chopped fine; a bay leaf, salt, and a cupful of stock. Simmer for an hour and serve with the sauce strained, on buttered toast.

Mountain Dew.—Mix the yolks of three eggs with one cupful of cracker crumbs, add one-half cupful of sugar, the juice and rind of a lemon, three cupfuls of milk. Bake until set, cover with a meringue prepared from the whites, brown and serve.

THE OFFICE CAT

By Junio

Gladys was walking down the street the other day when a strange man passed her. He looked at her a minute and then handed her a package of washing powder and a cake of soap.

Ohio has a woman in the supreme court. When she wants to reserve decision she probably powders her nose.

No. Gladys, a sleeping bag can hardly be called a knapsack.

If it is true that more boys are born after a war, it would seem to prove that they use very good judgment.

The familiar motto, "God Bless Our Home," usually ceases to function after you have shied a brick at the neighbor's pet cat—and by chance hit it.

Diplomacy, expressed in simple terms, is just a process of keeping the other fellow from getting it.

An ancient car chugged painfully up to the gate. The gatekeeper, demanding the usual fee for automobiles, called: "A dollar for the car!" The owner looked up with a pathetic smile of relief and said: "Sold."

Reformers are demanding the "socialization of rural centers," which translated into United States, probably means more chicken pie suppers.

The next time a pretty woman is tried for murder they should get a stone-blind jury if they want justice.

The man who never has felt the need of a vacation is beginning to weaken.

"Drink made me what I am today," said the bootlegger as he surveyed his mansion.

Spread happiness and you are more of a success than many a millionaire.

If you would be popular just try to keep your opinions to yourself for a while.

Vincent! We cannot all achieve renown. Some will ascend, and some stay down.

Though many win the world's acclaim, A host will work unknown to fame.

Do, then, thy duty as it comes; March without blare of brass and drums— Greater than conquerors or kings Is he who's great in little things.

You never have to seek the opportunity to make a fool of yourself. Many do it naturally.

WE are equipped with a scientific knowledge of optometry. We can answer Poor Eyesight's cry for help. We will do more than to give you a simple test to discover if you are suffering from far sightedness or from myopia (near sightedness). We will look back into the inner recesses of your eyes and discover their exact defects. We will prescribe glasses for you that will bring back to you the blessing of clear vision.

SPECIAL ASSESSMENT.

Notice is hereby given that I have received the warrant for collection of the special assessment of 75 per cent of the expense incurred in the construction of a Sanitary Sewer in Manor Avenue, commencing at a point 1,151 feet from Albany Avenue sewer and extending thence through Manor Avenue to a connection with existing sewer at Albany and Manor Avenue.

The same has been left with me for collection at my office in the City Hall, in said City; that for thirty days from the date of this notice the said assessment may be paid without additional fees or charges, and that for the twenty succeeding days a per centum additional will be collected.

If any of the said special assessments shall remain unpaid at the time last mentioned, I shall give a written or printed notice to the person or persons against whom such assessment stands charged, requiring them to pay such unpaid assessments to me at my office within thirty days thereafter, with 5 per centum fees thereon and one dollar for such notice as required by the City Charter.

SALE BILLS

KEEP AMERICA'S WAMPUM SOUND!

By SAMUEL M. BEACH.

President, Savings Bank Division, American Bankers Association.

Although the United States is today upon a solid gold basis, we nevertheless know of our own knowledge what inflation means. It would take long to recall in detail the bitter experiences, which this nation suffered during the Civil War and the years which followed it, and in our present easy condition we might think such conditions could never again arise. But with such men as Henry Ford and Thomas A. Edison talking about commodity money there is no foretelling what may happen.

S. M. Beach

One of the plainest lessons taught by financial history is that whenever a nation issues paper money with nothing back of it, that nation is on the road to disaster. Look at Russia with its worthless rubles and Germany with its worthless marks. Think of what happened in France during the years immediately following our Revolutionary War.

The common people of France rose in their might, tore down the Bastille, and made reprisals for centuries of kingly crime and oppression. The prodigal court had piled up taxes until they were unbearable. The enraged populace killed King Louis XVI, and also his queen, Marie Antoinette. But they only threw themselves out of the frying pan into the fire so far as finances were concerned.

Unsound Money Tyranny
At the very worst point of their currency inflation they found themselves under the absolute domination of Robespierre. In order to meet the growing scarcity of coin, paper money called assignats were issued. First 400,000,000 francs worth, then 800,000,000 were added with the distinct understanding that the 1,200,000,000 would be the full extent of the issue. This pledge was soon broken and further issues brought the total up to 2,700,000,000 francs.

Frightful depreciation was the inevitable result; and legislation was passed making it a crime, with six years' imprisonment as the penalty, if any one should refuse to take the paper assignats at their face value. Just think of it! A French peasant after working the entire year to produce a crop was compelled by law to accept payment for that crop in paper assignats, which he knew to be worthless, or go to prison.

It was simply legalized robbery. When the penalty was increased to twenty years' imprisonment the inevitable climax came. The Reign of Terror was at its height. Robespierre was in supreme power. He suggested that more assignats be issued and if the people did not take them the guillotine should be the penalty.

Robespierre's End
This unheard of outrage was more than the people could stand. An unknown man arose on the floor of the convention and denounced Robespierre, reciting the heinous crimes he had committed, and so worked upon the feelings of the audience that Robespierre, the tyrant, became Robespierre, the convicted criminal. Two days later he was led to the guillotine. France had learned her financial lesson well—that money must have value back of it.

The fallacy of unsound money is sure to confront us again. Never is there enough of everything for all the people. The struggle for existence is a real struggle, and those who find themselves in the lower strata of human society are ready at any time to grasp at flat money or any of the other things which misguided politicians hold out to them.

My whole purpose is to drive home the fact that danger lies ahead and to urge every one to let no opportunity go by to use voice and influence toward keeping the wampum of these United States, as it is today, the soundest currency in the world.

SOME BANK SALARIES

Investigations made by the Missouri Bankers Association have revealed that 363 banks in the state in towns of under 2,000 population are paying their cashiers and chief executives an average of only $110 a month. Only 272 of the 1,162 reporting banks in towns under 5,000 population pay the president a salary. The report says: "It indicates that, even allowing for the economy of living in small communities, the cashiers and managing officers of these 1,162 banks, who receive an average of $140 per month, either must have personal means to begin with, or must maintain the standards necessary to their positions as the leaders of their communities and the builders of the commonwealth by means of 'side lines,' such as selling insurance, collecting commissions on farm loans, and trading in real estate."

AMATEUR BANDS TO COMPETE AT STATE FAIR.

One of the biggest features ever attempted at the New York state fair at Syracuse will be staged on Syracuse Day, Monday, September 10, when all the bands of the state will compete for two thousand dollars in cash prizes and various band instruments.

There will be two classifications in which the bands may enter. Class A, for those of forty pieces, including wind, brass, reeds and drums, and Class B, for bands of twenty-five or under. The competition is being run on the same lines as the Crystal Palace Contest in England.
Bands wishing to enter the contest should write to the New York State Fair Band Contest Committee, Chamber of Commerce, Syracuse, N. Y.

Salad a la Mueller
Try the recipe below

A Delicious Summer Salad!

Served by Otto Gentsch, Chef de Cuisine, Hotel Astor, N. Y., to Executives of C. F. Mueller Co., and Endorsed by Them.

During Summer some people eat Mueller's two or three times a day—some every day. But they know how to prepare many delicious combinations of Spaghetti, Elbow Macaroni and Egg Noodles with other foods—with soups, meats, fish, salads and desserts.

1 package Mueller's Elbow Macaroni. Cook 10 minutes or until tender.
1 large head lettuce, 1 onion grated fine, 1/2 cup crisp celery diced, 1/2 pimiento cut in thin slices, 1/2 cup shredded cabbage, 1 teaspoon chopped parsley, 1 teaspoon sugar and 1 cup Mayonnaise.
Method: Mix ingredients with Mayonnaise, let stand one hour, now add the chilled Elbow Macaroni. Serve in crisp lettuce leaves, add more Mayonnaise, or French Dressing.

Check Heavy Foods With Your Fur Coat

DURING the hot months, eat more crisp, green salads. Vegetables and fruits are plentiful and cheap. There are vitamins in lettuce, cold-slaw, tomatoes, romaine, water cress—vitamins for you to consume the way Nature intended.

Eat more Salads! Don't chain yourself to overwork in a hot kitchen. Your delicatessen dealer can serve you with the most delicious salad tasted.

No Secret of Good Dressings

The "smack" of the salad absolutely depends on the dressing. Yet the most delicious dressings are simply made. Remember, there is no better salad oil in the world than Mazola—at any price. It combines Highest Quality with Lowest Cost.

Prove this statement by trying a can of Mazola. Make your favorite dressing. Serve it on your favorite salad. If Mazola is not equal in every respect to the finest imported salad oil (which costs you twice as much) we will gladly refund your money and pay you for your time and kindly co-operation.

THE CORN PRODUCTS REFINING COMPANY

The Most Delicious and Wholesome Mayonnaise you ever tasted! Make it yourself at home—in 3 minutes

1 cup Mazola. 1/2 teaspoon sugar. 1 egg yolk. 1/2 teaspoon salt. 1 tablespoon lemon juice or vinegar.

Add well-beaten egg whites to egg yolk with 1 teaspoon lemon juice or vinegar and beat well, adding 1 teaspoon Mazola at a time until mixture thickens, after which the Mazola may be added more rapidly. This may be done with or without vinegar when necessary.

The Best for Salads and Cooking

EUREKA.
Eureka, July 11.—Every farmer around here is busy getting hay which is very good around here.

William Ryan and family are nicely settled in their new home recently purchased off George Dayton. Mr. and Mrs. George Smith and daughters, Gertrude and Margaret, are spending a week at Grand Gorge with Mrs. Smith's sister, Mrs. Manly Murry.

The many friends of John Ennist were shocked to hear of his sudden death at Grahamsville Friday night. Arthur Busch is helping his father Burt Busch, in haying.

Asa Barkley made a business trip to town looking after chickens. Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence spent Sunday at Joe Carbury's.

Mrs. Elwin Moore and daughters, Harriet and Bernice, spent Saturday at Pierre Moore's at Unionville. Mrs. Samuel Donovan spent Monday with her son Mahlon on Rocky Ridge. Mel Dubois is repairing the state road.

To Advise Albania.

The council of the League of Nations went to far off Java to choose its representative as financial adviser to the little kingdom of Albania. J. D. Hunter, former governor of Batavia, has been selected by the league to take up the task of setting Albania on its financial feet.

Recent reports of the richness of Albanian oil fields and the rumors that many great international interests are seeking concessions there have probably caused the appointment of a more or less neutral Hollander to this important post. Mr. Hunter has been in his country's official service for many years, and his record in Java commended him strongly to the league. New York Herald.

Women Want Harem Back.

According to recent research the women of Turkey are not all giving three cheers for their recently acquired independence. Most of the old-timers are still strong for the harem. Now a lot of them have to get out and hustle for their meals. In the old days all they had to do was to sit on upholstered cushions in a nice warm harem and munch chocolate creams. They could push the buzzer for coffee whenever they felt like it and the hours were spent in gossip and embroidery. To go forth into a rough world and put in twelve hours a day in some factory or shop for the joy of being independent does not appeal to all of them. They are sighing for the good old days when Mustafa Pasha provided a nosebag for a whole flock of harem and odalisks. It seems to be mighty hard to please all the women in the world. Los Angeles Times.

LEAVE FOR CAMP TOUR ON SUNDAY

Local Commands of the National Guard are Officially "Batteries" Not Companies.

With orders for the movements of the local military organizations to Fort Eustis, Virginia, on Sunday next, comes word they are not to be designated as companies, that being a term peculiar to the Infantry branch of service. Instead, they will be hailed as batteries, this being the artillery branch. Instead of Companies E and I they will be known as Batteries E and I.

Woolen Olive Drab Uniform.

The orders in regard to the proposed passage of troops from their homes to the place of encampment are quite extended, and deal with every feature of the travel, except as to the hour of assembling, which is doubtless left to the local commanding officers. The men will wear the woolen olive drab uniform, taking their cotton ones with them in their pack. The batteries need take no working tools with them, these being provided at the fort. They will take arms, clothing and equipment. Extra blankets may be baked and sent to their destination. Officers are instructed to obtain and carry canteens. For a number of years there have been no side arms carried by officers.

On Arrival in Camp.

On arrival at camp the commanding officer will submit to the headquarters a full statement of the absence from his battery, assigning in connection therewith the reason they are absent. At the conclusion of the camp there will be submitted a detailed statement of the records made by each man, the police records, pistol practice records, etc. The entire encampment, so far as the 132nd Ammunition Train is concerned, will eat at four mess halls. Batteries A and B shall mess in one hall, Batteries E of Kingston, and C and D shall mess in another, Batteries F and G in a third hall, and the other two Batteries, I of Kingston, and H, in a fourth.

Addressing of Mail.

In addressing mail to men in the command the rank and battery should always be used, this being an example: "Sergeant James A. Jones, Battery I, 132nd Ammunition Train, N. Y. N. G., Fort Eustis, Virginia."

MONTOMA.

Montoma, July 12.—Mrs. Kathryn Shikworth celebrated her 85th birthday on July 4, receiving a number of nice gifts. Those present were Mrs. Alma Stoutenburg from Brooklyn, Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Stoutenburg of West Hurley, Mr. and Mrs. O. F. DeGraft, and Mrs. Lucas Stoutenburg. Mrs. Henry Johnson and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Stoutenburg.

Mr. Maude D. Stratton and daughter, Ruth, also Louis Stratton and son, Kenneth, of Kingston called on friends in this place on July 4.

Mrs. Harry Stoutenburg and daughter, June, of Glenford spent Monday with her mother, Mrs. Charles Yarr.

Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Cheronis of Chicago are spending a few days with friends in this place.

The people of this place were shocked to hear of the death of Mrs. Elmina Phillips of Middletown. The funeral services, which were held in the Glenford M. E. Church, were largely attended.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Stoutenburg are receiving congratulations over the arrival of a baby boy, Griffin Lawrence.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Decker of Kingston spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Lucas Stoutenburg.

Services at The Clove Chapel.

The Clove, July 12.—The Rev. Thomas S. Braithwaite, pastor of the Reformed Church, High Falls, will conduct service next Sunday night at The Clove Chapel and preach at 7:30, standard time.

ORCHARD CLEANINGS

TO MAKE BORDEAUX MIXTURE

Farmer Who Has Omission to Use Liquid Solution Often Should Keep Stock on Hand.

To make bordeaux mixture suspend four pounds copper sulphate in a gunny sack just below the surface of several gallons of water in a clean barrel. When the sulphate is dissolved, which requires three or four hours, remove the sack and stir into the barrel enough additional water to make exactly 25 gallons of the copper solution.

Prepare four pounds lime by slaking it slowly and thoroughly in a clean barrel, strain, and add enough additional water to make exactly 25 gallons of lime-milk. Stir thoroughly.

Four the two ingredients together into another barrel, or better, directly into the spray tank, if it will hold 50 gallons. It is highly important to stir the mixture very thoroughly and to strain both ingredients before they are combined, as otherwise clogging of the spray nozzles might result.

Use a copper or bronze wire strainer of 18 meshes to the inch. Do not put copper sulphate or bordeaux into tin or iron vessels; use wood or copper containers. Mix the bordeaux as needed and apply at once. It is never so good after it has settled.

Everyone who uses bordeaux frequently and in quantity will find it convenient to keep concentrated stock solutions on hand, as these keep indefinitely if the water which evaporates is replaced.

Build an elevated platform to hold the barrels. Suspend 50 pounds of copper sulphate to dissolve in a 50-gallon barrel of water. Slake 50 pounds of lime in another barrel. Add water to make 50 gallons of lime-milk. When bordeaux is needed stir both stock barrels and take from each as many gallons as the formula calls for in pounds. Dilute the copper sulphate in one barrel and the lime-milk in another, each with half the water, and let the two run together into the strainer of the spray tank.

DRESSING FOR TREE WOUNDS

Waterglass Found Most Satisfactory by Expert at Ohio Experiment Station.

Waterglass was found the most satisfactory dressing for tree wounds in tests made by W. J. Young of the Ohio experiment station. A dressing made for pruning wounds should stick well to the cut surface of the wood, exclude air and moisture, and protect the tree from attacks of fungi which cause rotting of the wood. White lead paint, grafting wax, gas tar, and many other substances as well as waterglass, which is commonly used for preserving eggs, were tested.

Waterglass readily unites with the sap of the tree and forms a successful coating over fresh wounds. Pure lead paint, though especially useful in poisoning the rot-producing fungi, does not stick well unless applied after the cut surface becomes dry.

Waterglass, it was explained, prevents the flow of sap and appears to preserve the wood from decay. After treatment the cut soon becomes dry and a coat of lead paint may be applied over the waterglass for additional protection if desired. The water glass may be applied as purchased, or if too thick to spread well, a little water may be added.

OIL KILLS SAN JOSE SCALE

Early Success of Experiments Proved So Well That Method is Spreading Rapidly.

San Jose scale is being controlled by means of an oil emulsion spray in northwestern Arkansas. The success of early experiments has been so well proved that the use of the method is spreading rapidly.

Red engine lubricating oil and resin fish oil soap is heated together and pumped and pumped into itself under pressure several times to insure a thorough emulsion. Six gallons of this stock solution is used to each hundred gallons of water.

GEORGIA PEAR BLIGHT-PROOF

Horticulturists Succeeded in Getting Tree Really Worth While After Experimenting.

After 12 years of experimentation, horticulturists at Georgia experiment station announce that they have a blight-proof pear that is really worth while. Fruit growers in Georgia, Florida and Alabama, and in other southeastern states, are trying to get some of the trees. These pears, which are hybrids, are known as Pineapple pears.

Spray Ring Saves Money. The spray ring saves money for the fruit grower. From five to a dozen growers are plenty to form one. This is a good year to try it out.

Get Material Ready. Get material ready to spray the fruit trees. To be effective the work must be done at the right time.

Prune Trees While Young. The pruning of trees while young is very essential in order to train them properly.

The Best Clingers.

Tillson, July 11.—Mr. and Mrs. Marcus Krom entertained relatives and friends Sunday from Saugerties, Newburgh, Hurley, Jamaica, L. I., and Tillson.

Mrs. Arthur Merrihew and daughter, Ruth, are spending some time with relatives in New York city. A large number of people from this place went to Krumville to attend the picnic July 4.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Bedford and family of Ilion and Mr. and Mrs. I. Christiansa and children spent the past week here.

Mrs. M. Krom, who has been under the doctor's care for the past few weeks, is better at this writing. There are a number of new buildings being built in this place.

There are a number of city people in this place at present. H. D. Craig is in a very critical condition.

Rain would be welcome as it is very dry in Tillson and vicinity. Mr. Keller has a number of people in his cottages.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Krempner spent the week end with his parents.

Mrs. S. Quick of Brooklyn is spending some time with relatives here. Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Dewey and children are spending some time with Mr. Dewey's parents in Canaan, Conn.

Mr. and Mrs. Walker and children of Jamaica are visiting Mrs. Walker's sister, Mrs. Meyer.

Clarence Deyo and friend, Eleanor Brown of Walden, visited Mr. Deyo's parents over the week end.

PINE GROVE.

Pine Grove, July 12.—Miss Rhoda Hilland is visiting her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. John Burke.

Mrs. and Mrs. Meoglin are entertaining their grandchildren from the city at Pine Knoll.

Mr. and Mrs. William Burton and daughter, Lois, of Beacon, spent Saturday night with relatives at Millbank Cottage.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Cole were Sunday callers of her sister, Miss M. A. Spielman.

Mrs. Luella Wolven is in Woodstock for the summer months. Adam Romer and wife of Saugerties were Saturday callers in this neighborhood.

Anton Schmitt, wife and family of Maiden spent the evening of the Fourth with relatives in Pine Grove.

Lieut. W. S. Myrnat has at this writing seven young boys in the Catskill Mountain camp at Bungalow Farm. People here wish him success in his new undertaking.

Mrs. Harry Monee and children of Pennsylvania are visiting her aunt, Mrs. Harry Cole.

Henry Burton and family and Miss Spielman were Saugerties callers on Thursday evening.

Some young men from Kortright are stopping with friends at Brookside Cottage.

NEW SINGLE EIGHT SHOWS ITS ABILITY

Product Goes Up the Hills and Over the Bumps Smoothly and Easily and 4-Wheel Brake Stops it Without a Skid.

A demonstrating model of the new Single-eight, which will speed the Packard Twin-six, has been received by Sutcliffe, Inc., local Packard distributors. The car was driven from New York city on Monday by Roy M. Sutcliffe, who stated that he has expected something exceptionally good when the new model was announced but that his expectations had been more than met. Some time ago Packard announced a straight eight to replace the Twin-six and since that time demonstrating cars have been placed in the principal sales districts of the country. Kingston is one of the smaller cities to be allotted a demonstrator. The car will be on display in the Kingston show rooms of Sutcliffe, Inc., for a week and will be taken to the show rooms in Poughkeepsie, where it will be on display for a time and then brought back to Kingston. The model resembled a sedan.

In announcing the new model Packard claimed to have a car which they believe would surpass any car on the market in speed, acceleration, braking, steering, smoothness of operation, ease of control, riding qualities and beauty and distinction of appearance. A short ride in the car just received by Sutcliffe, Inc., will clearly demonstrate that the claims of the company are well founded.

Packard in its new Single-eight has produced a car which by an entirely different type of crankshaft and an unusual firing order of the eight cylinders seems to have eliminated vibration, which will throttle down to an exceptionally low speed and pick up with a dash which to the average driver is entirely unknown. In a demonstrating drive Tuesday by Sutcliffe drove the Single-eight up the Orchard street hill at high speed in an hour and then stepped on the gas near the top and went over in high at a clip which seemed impossible.

The power and speed of the car apparently is unlimited and yet controlled without an effort. The flow of power on hills is smooth and even and a demonstration shows that the claims of the engineers are well founded. In addition to the new design of crankshaft the car is equipped with every device for ease of control. The braking is from all four wheels and even a sudden application of the brakes fail to cause a skid. The action of the brakes is easy and at the same time positive. In demonstrating the advantages of the car was driven at over twenty-five miles an hour at the right angle turn in the village of Hurley and when half way around the turn the brakes were applied as hard as possible. The car did not wobble or sway but came to a stop before the turn was completed. On a level stretch of road while going at 25 miles an hour, the brakes were applied and the car brought to a stop within three car lengths.

Another feature is the ball bearing steering apparatus which makes handling the car in traffic and on sharp turns almost effortless. A light touch of the hand is sufficient to control the car and in making a turn the front wheels return in position when the grasp on the wheel is released.

The power of the car and the rapid pick-up was demonstrated on the level of the "high gear" hills of Hurley and the ease of riding and control were shown by driving at thirty miles an hour over the rough road just beyond the concrete at Hurley village. A number of people who have driven the car claim it is one of the easiest riding cars manufactured.

Deliveries will not be made for some time.

The body lines of the car are the same as the Packard Single-six and the hood is about a foot longer. The car will be manufactured in the wheel base lengths, the larger being the sedan model which is now on display here.

FRECKLE-FACE

Heat and Wind Bring Out Ugly Spots. How to Remove Easily.

Here's a chance, Miss Freckle-face, to try a remedy for freckles with the guarantee of a reliable concern that it will not cost you a penny unless it removes the freckles; while if it does give you a clear complexion the expense is trifling.

Simply get an ounce of Othine—double strength—from any druggist and a few applications should show you how easy it is to rid yourself of the homely freckles and get a beautiful complexion. Rarely is more than one ounce needed for the worst case.

Be sure to ask the druggist for the double strength Othine as this strength is sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove freckles.

HOME COUNTY MAGAZINE ENTERS SECOND YEAR

In its first number on its second year, The Home County Magazine, out this week for August, contains a number of interesting articles and reminiscences. In the Ulster county section Edward J. Fitzpatrick contributes a fine article on Lake Mohonk, describes the wonderful section of the Shawangunks and tells of the legend of the old Indian who blindfolded a native, led him through the various paths up the mountain to the place where immense quantities of gold were hidden and there revealed to him the wonderful sight. The native was again hoodwinked and led down the mountain and to this day the great wealth lies undiscovered. Theodore Brink concludes his article on the Pine Bush neighborhood. Charles B. Safford describes "Peggy" Green's school of fifty years ago. In this article there is a picture of the teachers' training class of Kingston Academy, with the late Charles M. Ryon, then superintendent. In the Dutchess section there is a fine article on Chancellor James Kent, written by George R. Bishop, in which he tells of the great chancellor being a native resident of Dutchess county, and a young and practicing lawyer residing and practicing in Poughkeepsie, who was a sympathizer of the plan to ratify the Federal Constitution, knew its great advocates in the convention well, and the chancellor, after the duel between Hamilton and Burr, wrote to Hamilton's widow a remarkable letter telling her what he remembered about her husband and eulogizing his great qualities.

The Columbia county section contains a number of copies of interesting old documents. In the valley of the Hudson article, which concludes with this number, Albany is given a most prominent place, in which description is made of the wonderful old town "Yankee Doodle" is briefly sketched in this article. The other county sections, are well covered.

The idea of The Home County Magazine is to tell briefly of the historical events and the men who have been prominent in their time, especially of the counties along the Hudson river. It also aims to tell of the activities of the men from and in the counties who have ascended the ladder of achievement, both at home and abroad. The magazine is growing by leaps and bounds, and being read in every state in the Union.

Letting in the Light. Books are like the windows of a great tower. They let light in. Every life is a growing tower. It is put up stone by stone. The higher it grows, the darker it gets if we do not put in a window here or there to give light. That is what a book does to life. It lets light into that life. Some lives are so dark that the folks who live them grope up the winding stairs, dust covered and gloomy, because there are no windows and consequently there is no light.

EXCELSIOR HOSE TO BRING CARNIVAL

James M. Benson Shows Here For a Week At The Mutton Hollow Grounds Beginning Monday, July 16.

The Excelsior Hose Company has contracted with the James M. Benson Shows to furnish the amusements for its "Big Gala Week," starting Monday, July 16, near Hightsville bridge on the Mutton Hollow show grounds. The Benson shows are well known to the outdoor amusement seekers as one of America's foremost amusement enterprises. Among the many features with this company are the whip, the ferris wheel, the pony track and the standard ride of all, the merry-go-round. Other attractions are the circus side show, the minstrel show, the athletic show and the dog, pony and monkey circus. The Orange special arrives in Kingston Sunday afternoon.

OUR DAILY PATTERN.

A Smart Suit Style.
4393-4418. This style owes its originality to the smart lion jacket and the equally attractive wrap skirt. The vest may be omitted. Sports crepe was used in this instance. Linen, pongee, ratine or tulle would also be attractive.

The Jacket Pattern 4393, is cut in 4 sizes, 14, 16, 18 and 20 years. The skirt 4418 in 7 sizes, 16, 18 and 20 years for misses, and 21, 23, 25 and 27 inch waist measure for ladies. To make this suit for an 18 year size will require 4 1/2 yards of 10 inch material. To make vest and sleeve facings of contrasting material requires 3/4 yard. The width of the skirt at the foot is about 2 yards.

This illustration calls for TWO separate patterns, which will be mailed to any address on receipt of 12c FOR EACH pattern in silver or stamps by the Freeman Pattern Department, Rondout, N. Y. Be sure to state the size wanted.

Catalogue Notice.
Send 15c in coin or stamps for our up-to-date spring and summer catalogue, containing 500 designs of ladies, and misses' and children's patterns, a concise and comprehensive article on dressmaking, also some points for the needle (illustrating 30 of the various, simple stitches, all valuable hints to the home dress-maker.)

GOOD YEAR

Outfit for Afternoon Featuring Embroidery

This is an ideal combination for afternoon wear. It consists of a very handsomely embroidered ecru blouse embroidered with gold and toast color, with skirt effect of plaited crepe de chine—in toast over the same embroidery as the waist.

Animal Dresses One New Season Feature

This year the animal dresses are the sensation of the season, according to a fashion writer in the New York Tribune. An artist has been called in who has designed all kinds of intriguing and amusing little beasts that are applied onto simple chemise dresses, with the finest sewing imaginable. Elephants, tigers, panthers and other denizens of the jungles come into being in crepe de chine to bring a new note into fashion.

All Paris is talking about these wonderful dresses, and the smartest women are ordering them quickly, for here at last is something new that does not in any way interfere with the slim line that they really cannot bear to part with.

An exquisite variation of this type of dress might almost be called "A Midsummer Night's Dream." It is in pale gray-blue crepe de chine with wavy yoke and deep knee hem of palest silver gray that is almost white, looking like the billow white clouds that float across a summer sky. The waist-line is multiplied with uneven scallops of tender pale green, representing willow trees and above and below are tall, slender, dark green poplar trees. The dress looks like an artist's conception of a tree-bordered lake with a reflection in the water. The top of the dress is continued into long six-inch-wide ends that lie in loose bows over the arms to take the place of sleeves.

Printed materials form a very large proportion of the day dresses. There are old pointilliste designs and old-fashioned flower patterns, Colonial inspirations and the quiet conventional small flower-blended designs that our mothers loved.

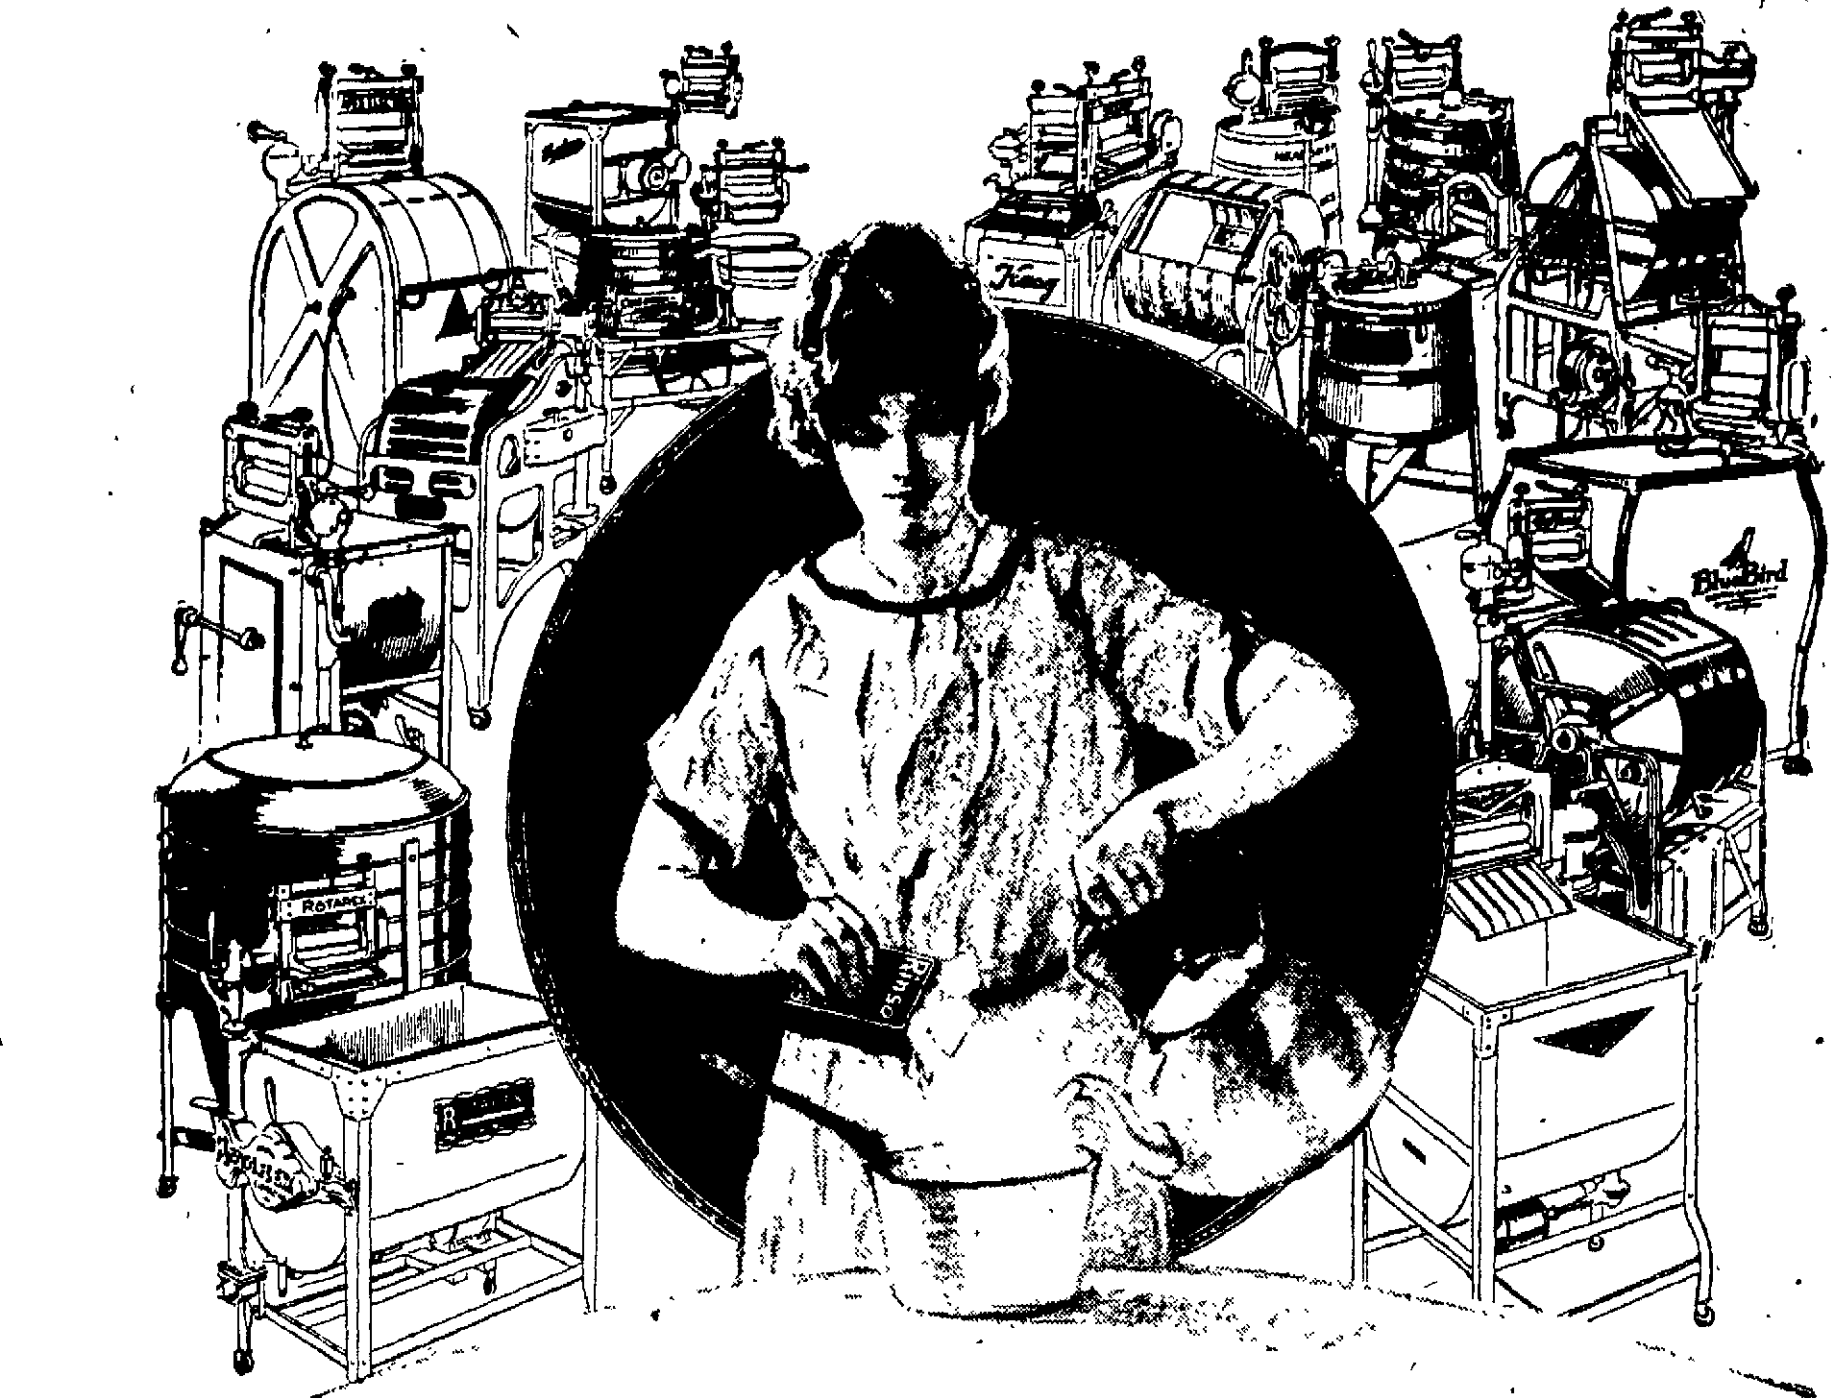

Most of these dresses are made either with a long drooping bow on one shoulder and another at one side of the waist or else with a small bow at the back of the neck and a second on the hips. The back bow, leaning toward the bustle effect, is very much favored in this collection.

Oilcloth for Table Runners and Doilies

Oilcloth table runners and doilies have taken on new beauty this season, as anyone can find out for herself by looking at the enticing displays in the shops. It has taken some of us a long while to overcome the prejudice against oilcloth table coverings, but no one can resist the new and clever pieces now available at astonishingly low cost. One may vary the table equipment in many ways. Lovely little lunch cloths and doilies are now made of colored linen, of Indian head, of glazed chintz, of unbleached cotton and even of cross-hatched dish-towel. These are all suitable for beach or mountain cottage and they involve much less trouble in the way of laundering and are at the same time attractive.

Some place, either on the porch, in the sunroom or in the main living room, a place for a couch swing and its standards may be found. This has great possibilities for comfort and it helps carry out the idea of informality so well expressed in many summer homes. An indoor or outdoor hammock may prove more convenient. A box couch and a chaise longue are two pieces of furniture that will find a ready welcome in most vacation homes and good comfortable rocking chairs are likewise sure to be popular.

Woman Tea-Taster.
Mingling Lane, the center of the London wholesale tea trade, has a woman tea-taster. Young and bobbed-haired, this pretty girl has hundreds of samples of tea to test, and in an incredibly short time gets through the sampling of thirty to forty cups of tea.

all say Use Rinso

They all agree there is no soap like it for washing machines!

Experiment after experiment made by laundry experts, by chemists and by practical washerwomen have resulted in an endorsement from these washing machine men that is enthusiastic and unanimous.

APEX says: "Our conviction is that the best partner Apex could find is Rinso."

COFFIELD says: "Tried out over a period equivalent to seven years' weekly use, Rinso did not corrode or injure the machine in any way. It can be used with absolute safety."

The GAINADAY people say: "Rinso suds stand up permanently. They penetrate the water so that every garment is saturated with 'rinso solution.'"

LAUN-DRY-ETTE writes: "We found no little soapy particles floating around in the water in our tests with Rinso as we did with some of the other soaps. Twelve minutes was the average operating period with Rinso and not a single article had to be hand rubbed."

"1900" CATARACT says: "In solution it permeates the water so evenly that its cleansing action reaches every garment."

ROTAREX writes: "We have tried out Rinso and other soaps—many of them good—in our machine, but for all 'round satisfaction we recommend Rinso."

SUNNYSUDS states: "We found that there was no necessity for rubbing at all. We could turn the clothes through the wringer direct into the rinse water after washing them with Rinso."

You, yourself, will share the enthusiasm of these leading washing machine manufacturers as soon as you try Rinso.

It will give you cleaner clothes and whiter clothes in less time and with less bother.

Rinso is made by the makers of Lux—the largest soap makers in the world. It is as wonderful for the family wash as Lux is for silks and woolsens. And so simple to use—no bothersome shaving of cake soap to boil up and make into jelly.

Get Rinso today. At all grocery and department stores in two sizes—the regular size and the big new package. Lever Bros. Co., Cambridge, Mass.

IMITATION FRUIT DRINKS CHEMICAL

Department of Agriculture Exposes the Methods Used.

FLAVORS ARE EASY TO MAKE

Millions of imitation fruit drinks are sold annually in the United States, according to the Department of Agriculture. As a matter of fact, the department charges, most of the so-called fruit juice drinks which sell for 5 cents are not fruit juices, but just some pleasing drink concocted by chemists.

"The soft drinks consumed in this country in a single year make up a quantity of liquor refreshment so large that it is hard to conceive of such a volume of varicolored and varifavored waters," said the Agricultural department. "If our last year's supply had been available to Methuselah at the beginning of the 969 years he would have eight bottles to dispose of every minute of his mortal span. The cold figures estimated by statisticians tell us that each year thirsty Americans consumed 4,000,000,000 bottles of soft drinks, and this total does not include beverages such as near beer, made from cereals. This sparkling food is poured out from 10,000 bottling establishments and over 110,000 soda counters.

All Are Thirsty.

"This enormous thirst-quenching industry is a relatively recent development, a result of the rapid commercializing of the discoveries of the chemist. It was not so long ago when bottled sodas were universally known as pop and found their principal market at baseball games, fairs and carnivals. The clear, watery drinks with a flavor usually suggestive of overripe bananas were good thirst killers, but provided little delectation for the palate. Had not great changes taken place in the beverage industry it is hardly probable it would ever have grown to present proportions. These improvements lead to the question of the composition of these ubiquitous beverages.

"What is in these refreshing liquors which may be bought almost anywhere at a nickel a bottle or glass? Fruit juices? Well, sometimes, but the chemist has simplified the problem of supplying us with a pleasing drink at a low price. He has made marvelous imitations of nature's products, and it has now become necessary for other chemists, those employed by the United States Department of Agriculture, to keep watch on the composition of the various drinks under the authority of the food and drugs act which requires that imitations be so labeled. Under this law these drinks are considered foods. Briefly, they are made up of sugar, sparkling water, a fruit acid, and minute quantities of flavor and color.

"Necessarily there is a great variation in the makeup of the numerous beverages of this class, but roughly each bottle contains about three-fourths of an ounce of sugar and the tart taste is usually imparted by about two grains of citric or tartaric acid. In phosphate drinks phosphoric acid is used for this purpose. In recent years the flavors have increased greatly in variety, including among others orange, lemon, lime, cinnamon, neroli, vanilla, cocoa leaves, kola nuts, wintergreen, prickly ash bark, nutmeg, cloves, geranium, ginger, grains of paradise, saffron, and sarsaparilla. The flavors are usually made up in alcoholic tincture and five to ten drops used to the bottle.

Flavors Galore.

"The skilled chemist has provided a host of flavors which the consumer cannot distinguish from the original from nature's laboratory. He is using aromatic chemicals formerly used only in the perfume industry. The aroma as well as the color and flavor of fruits is being imitated. Orange and grape imitations, perhaps, have been more widely produced than any others.

"In making these 'fruit' drinks successful efforts have been made to please the eye as well as the palate. The old-fashioned 'pop' drinks were clear. Many of the new drinks are cloudy, stimulating in appearance fruit drinks containing fruit pulp in suspension. The cloudy effect is produced in various ways—by putting up the flavors with a little gum, such as acacia, tragacanth, or Indian gum, and by the use of small quantities of starch.

"These modern beverages made to simulate fruit drinks in taste, color, and general appearance contain nothing dangerous to health, but the food and drugs act demands that such products entering into interstate commerce be labeled for what they are. The concentrated sirups which are used as the base for making up many of the beverages are so marked, but when the drink comes to the consumer in bottle or glass he has no means of knowing whether he is getting the natural product or the imitation unless the state requires that it be shown on the bottle whether or not the product is an imitation."

Unconscious of Cracked Skull.

Although suffering from fractured skulls, Howard Hartman and James Stoudt, of Reading, Pa., watched a baseball game. They had been injured in a fall from a motor truck. After the game both boys became ill and were taken to their homes.

Valuable Gum Mines.

Probably the only gum mines in the world are in New Zealand, where there is a whole district in which fossilized gum from trees that died centuries ago is found a few feet below the surface. The substance is valuable, for it makes the best kind of transparent varnish, and many fortunes have been made by men who have worked it.

ACTIVITIES AT THE PLAYGROUNDS

Activities at the city playgrounds are now in full swing. A visitor to either Hasbrouck Park or Forayth Park in the morning will invariably find a spirited game of ball in progress under competent supervision. The boys and girls who frequent the parks are also busy training for track meets which will be run later on in the season. Use is made of all of the playground equipment and the children greatly appreciate it.

At Forayth Park as usual the tennis courts are in great demand and if the large number which use them means anything before very long Kingston should develop some champion tennis players.

Pirates Lose to Hasbrouck Park.

At Hasbrouck Park on Wednesday morning of this week the Pirates lost a fast game of ball to the team representing Hasbrouck Park by a score of 21 to 6. The lineup for the winners was as follows: Costello, p.; Barry, c.; Scully, 1b.; Terpening, 2b.; Sweeney, 3b.; Murphy, ss.; Smith, rf.; Scully, lf.; Christians, rt.; K. White, cf.

The losers lined up as follows: Gardesku, p.; Gallagher and Doherty, c.; Jordan and Leskie, c.; Doherty and Mathia, 1b.; Leskie, 2b.; Mathia and Granky, ss.; Gallagher, 3b.

How Races Differ Physically.
The smallest races of mankind are the Eskimos, Mongols, Burmese, Japanese, Bengalese, Malays, Javanese and Hottentots, whose average weight at full growth is between 120 and 150 pounds. The big races include English, Scotch, Scandinavians, Bulgarians and the Northern or Tartar Chinese. The average weight of an adult man of these races is about 150 pounds. Next come French, Italians, Spaniards, Arabs, Turks and southern Chinese. Their average weight is between 135 and 140 pounds.

A Poor Hand.
About a year ago a Northeast matron went to a card party, the second this winter. She won the prize, and since then her skill has been much in her mind. A day or so ago she went to the "James" aid. The roll was being called, and all those present were asked to respond with Bible verses. Like a bolt from the sky the Northeast matron's name was called away ahead of the alphabetical order. "I pass," she blurted.

Discipline.
There is not that thing in the world of more grave and urgent importance. And certainly discipline is not only the removal of disorder, but, if any visible shape can be given to divine things, the very visible shape and image of virtue; whereby she is not only seen in the regular gestures and motions of her heavenly pages as she walks, but also makes the harmony of her voice audible to mortal ears.—Milton.

THE BOHEMIAN

By JANE GORDON

(S. 1923, Western Newspaper Union.)

"ALL my life," said Sidney, "I have wanted to do something delightful out of the ordinary. At home in Smetburg things are so handrum. When you invited me here to visit you, Uncle Nolley, I was thrilled. Artists are all bohemians, are they not?"

Noel Strange, illustrator, smiled whimsically. "My wife gives this disorder another name when she comes over to straighten up my work place. And if you expect a respectable married man like myself to be bohemian of taste, Sidney, you are to suffer disappointment. I had enough of bizarre cafes during my bachelorhood. However, if you must have a peep into the unusual, I'll take you over to the 'Yellow Gate' for luncheon."

"That will be lovely!" the young woman from Smetburg cried. "I was reading such a romantic story the other day; nothing truly romantic happens in our town. You meet a young man in the conventional way, and by and by you settle down in a regulation white house to wash his dishes for him ever after."

"Now, this story, Uncle Nolley: Two who met accidentally at a bohemian party, where famous people were assembled—and without any unnecessary introduction—had the loveliest mysterious romance. You see, they didn't know a thing about each other; at the party everyone called her Nance, while he was merely Jack. And they did not learn each other's proper name until the night before their wedding. Then she discovered that he was a great writer while she was a noted singer. "If nothing will satisfy the longing for bohemia—but bohemia, we will have to give you your desire. Stop in at the studio after your shopping tour with your aunt and I'll take you over to the 'Yellow Gate.'"

Noel Strange was proud of his young relative as he presented her to a pretty young "scribbler," to whom the really good food of the "Yellow Gate" appealed.

"You will look after my niece, I'm sure, Miss Sells," he requested, "and I'll hurry back to work."

When the independent young scribbler—as it happened—was obliged also to hasten back to her office, Sidney decided to linger at the small yellow table and await—adventure. Her bright, eager, glancing eyes brought it promptly.

A tall young man, who had been nothing the pretty stranger from the opposite table, arose and came with no pretense other than his wish to meet her, directly to Sidney's side.

"How do you do, Miss Bluebell Eyes," he remarked as he bent close to smile at her.

And, was not this the adventure she was looking for?

So, presently, with an assumption of coolness, she replied, "Oh, how do you do?—or, rather, what is it that you do?—write or paint, or sing."

"Paint," answered the young man. Think you could be persuaded to pose for me some time. My springtime girl requires just such blue eyes as yours. Sidney caught her breath. "I'd love to!" she exclaimed.

"All right." The artist's tone was matter of fact.

"Now, to seal the bargain and become acquainted, may I take you to a matinee?"

A little thrill crept down Sidney's back—the daughter of Smetburg's minister—at the theater with an unknown man! But was not this the mystery she courted?

"I will go," she agreed, faintly.

"Have a good time with Miss Sells at the 'Yellow Gate'?" Uncle Noel questioned upon her return. Sidney blushed.

"A wonderful time," she said, which was true, in part. Don Grenville, artist, was like no man whom Sidney had known outside the pages of glorified romance. And she had promised another meeting at the "Yellow Gate" the following afternoon, which was but the beginning of meetings occurring regularly thereafter. Long ago she had recognized that love had come to her; also long ago—oh, a whole week ago—the young man had confessed gravely, and earnestly, and wildly, his love for her. And withal this miraculous granting of her wish, Sidney Smith was disturbed and troubled. To have wished to laugh with bohemia was one thing; to find your future husband a member of that gay, changing throng, was another. Now, in her serious love, Sidney longed that he might be even of the order of home-town young men. So, at last, she was forced to admit this reason of her gloom.

To her astonishment, Don Grenville's answer was to clasp her in his arms.

"Why, Sidney," he murmured, "my true little Sidney whom I have found at last! I'm the most domestic, home-loving man in the world. This theatrical playing bohemia stuff was all a fake. I was busy behind the curtain in your uncle's studio the day you voiced your wish for mysterious romance. And later he and I framed up my meeting with you at the 'Yellow Gate.' If you were out for that sort of thing, we agreed I'd better be there to see that you found the right kind of mystery. I'm studying with your uncle. And I guess we've found the right kind of romance—my Sidney."

KIRWOOD'S BEST SCORE AT INWOOD

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Inwood Country Club, Far Rockaway, N. Y., July 12.—With Bobby Jones, Atlanta's youthful star and Jim Barnes at Pelham, N. Y., as the outstanding stars of a well balanced field the final qualifying round of the National Open Golf Championship got underway today.

Joe Kirkwood, former Australian, is the only player in three quarters of the field who has been able to negotiate it in par in two qualifying rounds.

Kirkwood did a 70-74, for a total of 144 on Tuesday. This is the low qualifying score of the morning so far. Par for Inwood is 72.

FRIDAY'S GAME AT 6:15 O'CLOCK

It is now announced that the ball game between the Colonials and the V. A. team at the Fair Grounds on Friday evening will begin at 6:15 o'clock. The N. V. A. team is composed of members of the National Vaudeville Artists, Inc., and members of the team and others of the vaudeville show at the Fair Grounds. The game will be played at the Fair Grounds on Wednesday afternoon. Bud Culliton got three hits out of three times at bat, driving in three of the Colonial runs. Furthermore he held the Mountain Club to seven hits, struck six of the opposition out, and walked just two men, which is far from being a bad day's work.

WILLARD AND FIRPO CONFIDENT

Telegraph to The Freeman. New York, July 12.—The following pre-battle statements were made by both Jess Willard and Luis Firpo today. Firpo spoke through an interpreter.

Willard: "I feel in as good a condition as I have ever felt in my life. I have trained faithfully and defeated tonight. I will have no doubts. My ambition is to defeat Firpo in a convincing fashion and then to get a match with Jack Dempsey, whom I think I can defeat without doubt and win back the championship."

Firpo: "I am in the best condition of my life. This is the first time I have trained seriously for a fight in my life. I will give the public my best."

The Fight in Brief.

Main event—Twelve rounds between Jess Willard, of Kansas; former world's heavyweight champion, and Luis Angel Firpo, of Argentine, South American champion.

Willard is 41 years old, six feet seven inches tall, weighs 242 pounds; Firpo, 28 years old, six feet two inches tall, weighs 214 pounds.

Preliminary—Twelve rounds between Floyd Johnson and Jack McHugh.

Preliminary—"Tiny Tim" Herman vs. Cliff Kramer; Young Bob Simmons vs. Tom Roper; Charley Subert vs. George West.

Referee—Main event, Harry Lewis.

STAMFORD FALLS BEFORE COLONIALS

At Fair Grounds on Wednesday Afternoon—Bud Culliton Pitched Excellent Game and Gets Three Hits Out of Three Times at Bat—Stamford Has Good Club—Score 4-1.

Due to the pitching and hitting ability of Bud Culliton and good support from his team mates the Colonial baseball team administered a 4-1 trouncing to the Stamford baseball club at the Fair Grounds on Wednesday afternoon. Bud got three hits out of three times at bat, driving in three of the Colonial runs. Furthermore he held the Mountain Club to seven hits, struck six of the opposition out, and walked just two men, which is far from being a bad day's work.

The Stamford Club has been thoroughly reorganized and Wednesday was the first game that the new team has played together. To say the least they have a strong outfit and one which is going to make some trouble for the semi-pro teams in this section before the season is over. The team is made up principally of collegians and has a good deal of pep and spirit.

Fans who witnessed the game Wednesday saw two of the best third basemen in semi-pro baseball in this section in the persons of Roche of Stamford team and McCue of the local team. Of the two Roche had the best opportunity to show that he is a real star. He had eight chances and handled them all in perfect shape. Like McCue, Roche is also a pitcher making him a valuable man to any ball team. McCue only had two chances Wednesday but handled both of them perfectly.

Subert, who it is understood is a Syracuse University pitcher, was in the box for the Stamford Club and with the exception of one inning he held the Colonials down in a very commendable manner. He allowed the local club eight hits, struck out three men, and walked four. His one bad inning was the sixth when the local club found him for four hits and three runs. Subert has an excellent drop and out curve. However, his one fault is wildness. Invariably he would have two balls on a batter before he got any strikes which meant a lot of wasted energy.

Hank Smedes caught behind the bat on Wednesday in place of Robins, who has a bad knee, and Hank caught a good game. He not only caught a good game, but also managed to get a hit from the offerings of Subert.

Swat Russell hit all out of proportion Wednesday getting two hits instead of one as is his usual custom. Stamford scored their only run in the second inning when Mackley, the right fielder, bent one of Bud's offerings over the left field fence for a home run.

The Colonials came back and scored another run in the very same inning when with the bases loaded Culliton hit to the pitcher and scored Dahn.

Neither team did a great deal from then until the sixth inning when the local club as started above made four hits and scored three runs. Dahn grounded out to the third baseman. Schwab received a base on balls. Hank Smedes hit a hot one down between first and second and Russell hit a two bagger to left field which scored Schwab. Then Bud hit a pop fly between the first baseman and the right fielder which no one could get and scored both Smedes and Russell. McCue hit past the third baseman but both Coyle and Fogarty grounded out.

In the ninth inning Stamford hit the bases loaded with two down, due to three clean hits, but Magnum fled out to Deegan, which ended the inning.

How We Get "Primrose." A primrose is neither prim nor rose. The original word was "primrose," meaning the first, and has no conception of primness whatever. It changed into "rose" because that word had a recognizable meaning in English.

BROOKINGS MAKING WORLD RECORD

Charley Brookings of Iowa is shown "doing his stuff" as he does it when making world records like 23 9-10 in the 220-yard low hurdles at the Stagg field competition in Chicago. The four pictures, left to right, are: Charley getting set on the mark; leaving the mark and gathering speed for the first hurdle; over the barrier; and last, his lunge over the tape.

Diamond Squibs

Eddie Roush is enjoying a big year at Cincy.

Hans Wagner ended his professional baseball career with forty-three years of age.

Manager Ty Cobb says a baseball team needs inspiration to win. And a few pitchers.

In the first month of the International season there were 30 games postponed, or an average of one a day.

The "most valuable player to his team" in the Southern league will next fall be presented with an automobile.

Horace (Pug) Allen, outfielder, has been shifted from Dallas to Beaumont, the latter club claiming him on waivers.

"Baby Doll" Jacobson, of the Browns, is gaining on the batting leaders and should be among the top-notchers before long.

George (Mickey) O'Neill, catcher for the Boston Nationals, has announced his retirement from baseball to go into the drug business.

As part payment for first baseman Ace Elliott, the Chicago Cubs sent Art Weis, outfielder to the Wichita Falls Texas league club.

The Minneapolis club has put its only southpaw, Earl Yingling, on the suspended list. Yingling has been unable to get in shape.

"The best utility man ever seen in the South Dakota league" is the way an admirer writes of Wesley (Berry) Clemens of the Aberdeen team.

Nell Blaisdell, the young college pitcher who came all the way from Honolulu to get a trial with the Chicago White Sox, is on his way back.

Otis Miller, Toronto's recruit infielder from the Minn league, who got off to a bad start this spring, is now in high favor with Toronto critics and fans.

The first half of the Florida State league season closed with Orlando a rather easy winner and St. Petersburg, the champions of last year, down in the rack.

Having obtained Wickey McAvoy from the Orioles, the Rochester club has sent Catcher Walter McQuinn to its Scranton farm, along with Henzen, an infielder.

Connie Mack recently sent Friend Ira Thomas at Shreveport a rookie pitcher, Elbert Schilling. So far he has been of great help to the wallowing Shreveport team.

Johnny Bish, for several years pitcher with Worcester, released to bring the club within the player limit, has been signed by Montreal of the Eastern Canada league.

Playing his old position of first base seems to have helped Hooks Cotter of the Wichita Falls team in his hitting. For he has been pounding the ball hard since he shifted from the outfield.

Among collegians recently signed by the Boston Americans is Eddie McQuinn, a pitcher from Drexel Institute of Philadelphia. If he lives up to the family name he will be a big league star.

Miss Nina Belle Hurst, who has been officially appointed as a baseball umpire by the Southern California Baseball Managers' association, is said to be the only official woman baseball umpire in history.

More Accuracy in Golf

The beginner at golf is told often about the follow-through, which means the completion of the stroke, even after the ball has been hit.

Mild Remark by Mercer

Win Mercer, one of the mildest mannered of pitchers, has been dead for a good many years, but one mild remark got him benched.

Win was pitching for Washington, and he was not only wild, but was being hit hard. He thought Cantillon was missing a few strikes on him and he complained two or three times.

Finally he turned around and said: "Joe, you're in the wrong place to see 'em."

"Now, Win, you've been in the wrong place all afternoon. You belong under the showers." And Win went.

Mustache for Scott

The venerable Jim Scott of the San Francisco Seals is so proud of his age that this season he has grown a mustache. The lip whiskers are tinged with gray, as are the hairs on Scott's head and the grayer the better Scott likes it. Meanwhile he continues to be a wizard on the hill for the Seals, old and gray as he is.

Football Player Seldom

Makes Good at Baseball

The football player who "doubles" at baseball and becomes a great baseball player is rare. For instance, Mathewson was a star football player at Bucknell, Dave Fultz, one of the great stars in baseball of a generation ago, was an All-American at football. Paul Casner, pitching and out-felding star at Notre Dame, whom the majors are after, came near reaching the All-American heights. For the most part, however, star baseball players coming from the colleges are not worked very much in football. Many athletic directors, if they have a star baseball player, keep him from the more dangerous game of football, saving him for the diamond.

For instance, when at Michigan, George Sisler had everything to make him a great football player. Yet saw a gridiron gem in Sisler, but saw, too, that baseball was the place where he would win fame for Michigan.

Johnny Bish, for several years pitcher with Worcester, released to bring the club within the player limit, has been signed by Montreal of the Eastern Canada league.

Playing his old position of first base seems to have helped Hooks Cotter of the Wichita Falls team in his hitting. For he has been pounding the ball hard since he shifted from the outfield.

FIRPO IS AN 8 TO 5 FAVORITE

His Youth and Strength Offset Willard's Size and Experience in Estimates of Bettors.

By Telegraph to The Freeman. New York, July 12.—That a good big man can beat a good little man is the accepted pugilistic theory. But whether a good big man, endowed with skill and priceless experience can beat an equally good big man, with youth and strength will be put to a test tonight when Jess Willard, former heavyweight champion, clashes with Luis Firpo, the meteoric South American, in a twelve round no decision bout at Jersey City.

The winner has been promised a title tilt with Jack Dempsey.

The Broadway gentry have made Firpo an 8 to 5 favorite. It is probable Firpo may even be longer favorite as there was a preponderance of money to be bet on him this morning with little Willard currency showing. Jimmy DeForest, Firpo's trainer, said he has schooled his charge in his only apparent weakness—a left hand. DeForest claimed the South American is hitting as hard with his left as he is with his right.

"Firpo will be in the best of shape tonight," DeForest said. "I've got him in better shape than he was for any of his fights. He will come in at 214 pounds. He is going to surprise everybody with his ability."

Willard has rounded into perfect physical perfection, according to his trainer, Jack Skelly.

"I'm more than pleased with the way Jess has come around," Skelly said. "He is boxing like a light-weight, is punching harder and judging distance better than ever before. They talk about Firpo's strength but remember Willard is no weakling. Any man he hits, Willard will beat and Firpo can be hit."

An interesting angle to the bout, will be the battle of wits fought behind the lines.

DeForest will be supreme in Firpo's corner. Skelly will have the say in Willard's corner. Both seconds are grizzled boxing authorities. DeForest has conditioned some of the members of boxing's "hall of fame." Skelly was one of the best of the little men of his day.

Jack McAuliffe, 2nd., of Detroit, will meet Floyd Johnson in the semi-final. McAuliffe was knocked out by Firpo and Johnson by Willard at the recent Milk Fund show.

Seldom has any bout, in which no championship is at stake, aroused such interest as the feature bout tonight. The show is a sellout. It was announced today, with an advance sale of more than $100,000. Boyle's Thirty Acres, where the fight will be staged, is expected to hold between 75,000 and 80,000 persons.

TAGGING ALL THE BASES IN THE MAJOR LEAGUES

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Pittsburgh pitchers proved simple problems in hits and runs and the Giants made it two straight over the Pirates 6 to 1.

Alexander had the best of a duel with Reuther and the Cubs blanked the Robins 2 to 0.

The Cardinals found the Braves so easy for a 10 to 4 victory that they used an entire team of substitutes before the game ended.

The Reds went into second place by defeating the Phillies 6 to 2 and 9 to 6.

Hoyt pitched pretty ball; Babe Ruth got four hits in four times up and Yanks won their second straight from the White Sox 3 to 1.

Coveleski was too much for the Athletics and the Indians again triumphed over the Mackmen by the score 4 to 2.

Grabbing a double-header 7 to 3 and 6 to 1, in celebration of the Red Sox sale for over a million, the Tigers went into a tie for third place with the Mackmen.

burning, thereby causing the formation of acids which in turn cause coma and death.

Diabetes has been recommended for generations to patients suffering from diabetes, but the real cause of diabetes was unknown until recently and consequently the cure could not be found. The first hint of the cure was due to the discovery of both. In a general way it was known that diabetes resulted from a disorder of the pancreas, which is the large gland supplying digestive juices to the stomach. The appearance of the pancreas under the microscope resembles a huge quantity of baseballs with numerous footballs scattered indiscriminately through them. Investigation by the scientists showed that where diabetes existed, the larger lumps, corresponding to the footballs in the illustration just mentioned, had disappeared, and Dr. Banting concluded that it was the larger lumps which supplied to the stomach the fluids which in an ordinarily healthy person dissolved the sugar in the stomach and thereby allowed it to perform its work for the human body. The large lumps (the footballs) have long been known as the islands of Langerhans. The islands, in the pancreas, are small, they are of different sizes, and apparently not connected with the work because of the difference of the size. Dr. Banting, by experimentation with dogs, found that by shutting off the duct which discharges the digestive juice into the stomach and smaller intestine, where digestion takes place, the pancreas finally disappeared and left only the islands of Langerhans, whose extract was found to clear the blood of its surplus sugar. In diabetes, the pancreas remains but the islands of Langerhans disappear, and in the production of "insulin," the new cure for diabetes, the utmost care must be exercised to prevent the pancreas dissolving the islands before the pancreas itself disappears.

"Insulin," which means island, is administered hypodermically, and its immediate result is to dissolve the amount of sugar in the blood, which takes place within a few hours. The treatment must continue until the blood shows only the normal amount of sugar. If the islands of Langerhans in the pancreas could grow three again, they would probably perform their work and furnish the juice which dissolves the sugar in the stomach and blood naturally but as this is impossible, it becomes necessary for the patient afterwards to live on a strict diet—but at any rate, he lives and does not die from diabetes.

"Insulin" has not been used long enough to determine definitely whether diabetic symptoms ever return in a patient who has received the insulin treatment, but it has been demonstrated by the cases treated at the Benedictine Hospital that the blood can be brought to such a condition that amputation of parts affected by gangrene can be made successfully without fear of gangrene reappearing; and that fact in itself will be welcomed by men and women who have developed gangrene because they suffered from diabetes and looked forward to a lingering death. And the relief of the person suffering from diabetes in its less malignant forms is beyond expression.

CHILD CLINIC COMES TO CLOSE

The clinic for crippled children at the city hall which opened Wednesday morning closed this afternoon with a number of cases being examined. Dr. Leroy Hubbard, state orthopedic surgeon, was in charge of the clinic and was assisted by Mrs. Elizabeth Moore, Mrs. Stanton and Miss Fitzpatrick, trained nurses, from the state department.

A record was made of every case examined and it will be followed up by the state until all assistance possible is given. Vocational training will also be recommended to fit each case and the training provided by the state.

The Rotary Club will take care of providing special apparatus in the way of braces, etc., that may be needed in some of the cases.

A Social. — will hold a dinner social at the home of Mrs. George Love, 457 Washington avenue, on Friday evening.

HARDING SAILING AMONG GLACIERS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Aboard U. S. S. Henderson, with President Harding, in Alaska, July 12 (via radio).—The magnificent Alaskan glaciers unfolded before President Harding today as the Henderson bore almost due westward toward Seward where starts the government railway.

The party was behind schedule today because of the visit to Skagway. The Henderson came out of the straits during the night and this morning was off Muir glacier, one of the most picturesque and splendid of Alaska's many glaciers. The course of the transport today lay alongside 400 miles of coast line dotted with glaciers and with scarcely a town or habitation of any sort to break the monotony of the towering icy peaks that stretched as far away as the eye could see.
